BANK OFFERS BIG REWARD FOR ARREST OF SWINDLERS

Asia Banking Corporation Seeks Three Men

CODE WAS STOLEN

Hilliard, James And Elliott Are Men Sought

BY JOSEF W. HALL
Staff Correspondent the China Press

Peking, Sept. 13.—The Asia Banking Corporation has offered a large reward for information resulting in the arrest and conviction of Robert Hilliard, Chester James and Max Elliott, who are accused of swindling the Guaranty Trust Company, of New York, through its subsidiary, the Asia Banking Corporation, by means of a stolen code. The money stolen was sent to Hankow from New York by way of London.

The officials of the bank here say that £31,000 was paid over to Elliott at Hankow, of which all but £2,930 was transmitted by him to Peking, where it was paid to James by the Asia Bank. James, it is said, represented himself as a member of the firm of James and Hilliard, engineers.

Hilliard, the bank officials say, sent the code messages which enabled James to draw the money from the bank. Elliott is said to have called himself manager of "The International Trading Company" at Vladivostok, and advisor to the Chinese civil governor at Wuchang.

The Asia Bank has announced that £15,000 has been recovered and the remainder, it is believed, is on deposit in other banks. The loss is fully insured and no other branches of the Asia bank are affected.

Elliott is believed to have sailed from Shanghai recently. He is described as of medium height, dark complexioned, and as wearing dark glasses. He pretended to be of American-Finnish parentage. James and Hilliard are believed to have sailed recently for Japan.

Peking, Sept. 12.—With regard to the Guaranty Trust Company fraud it appears that the telegrams in question were signed "Robert Hilliard" and handed in at the Hankow telegraph office at the end of July. They were in the Guaranty Trust Company's code and cyphered by a test key, which has not been superseded, and called for payment in London of £31,730 to "Max Elliott" (alias Peare alias Pearse alias Shabin, who posed as Manager of the International Trading Company of Vladivostok at Peking) for the account of "Chester James," legal adviser at Wuchang to the Civil Governor.

The money was paid to "Elliott," who retained £2,930, remitting the balance of £28,800 through other banks to Peking to be paid to the Asia Banking Corporation for the account of "Chester James," who was posing as a partner in the firm of "Hilliard and James, Engineers, Peking."

Mr. "James" has been seen at the Peking Club but he was not introduced to the Club.

The fraud was carefully concocted, involving a forged letter of introduction. £15,000 has been recovered. The loss is covered by insurance.

On behalf of the Guranty Trust Company the Asia Banking Corporation offers a reward of $2,500 for information leading to the apprehension of the criminals.

Tariff Expected To Raise $400,000,000

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, Sept. 12.—It is roughly estimated that the Tariff Bill, as agreed to by the joint conference of both Houses, will raise $400,000,000 annually. Experts say that the level of rates in it are slightly below the last Republican tariff law but considerably above the Democratic law now in force.

SILK MILLS SHUT IN JAPAN, DUE TO OPERATING COSTS

American Competition Also Big Factor Say Manufacturers

(China Press Service)

Tokio, Sept. 6.—High production costs in the manufacture of silk piece goods and a sluggish demand in foreign markets have placed Japanese mills in a precarious position, according to reports from Fukui and Kanazawa prefectures, and it is intimated that unless conditions improve that part time production, and in some cases complete shut-downs, will have to be resorted to, according to the Advertiser. Manufacturers of pongee are suffering the most, due to the high price of tussore silk. Antung, which supplies most of the demand for tussore, has reported a shorter production, which has brought on stiff quotations.

Output of habutai during August fell off as a result of this condition. Production in Fukui Prefecture during the month amounted to 78,589 pieces, a decrease of 26,000 pieces compared to July's output. Ishikawa Prefecture announced an output of 37,518 pieces, a decline of nearly 22,000 pieces compared with July.

Although the raw silk market has been favored with good trade, foreign buyers have been forsaking the habutai market, and the sudden drop in demand together with big overhead expenses, have caused several mills to shut down. Others have been operating on part time. Pongee weavers at Matsumoto ceased work during the latter part of August. The outlook for September does not look encouraging, according to manufacturers, as no price reductions in raw materials are looked for. In addition mills in many prefectures are having difficulty in procuring sufficient electric power.

One of the reasons for the lapse in foreign demands has been caused by greater production by American mills. Patterson, New Jersey, the center of the silk weaving industry in the United States, is now turning out an immense quantity of piece goods, especially in the more expensive grades. Several new mills have been opened during the past few weeks. America has always been the chief buyer of habutai as well as raw silk in the Japanese market, and when buyers for American firms are idle here, the industry suffers.

American Chamber Of Commerce Reception Saturday

Telegraphic advice has just been received by the American Commercial Attache, here, to the effect that C. H. Huston, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, accompanied by Mr. James F. Abbott, Commercial Attache to Japan, will arrive by rail from Peking tomorrow night.

On Saturday afternoon from 5 to 7 a reception will be held under the auspices of the American Chamber of Commerce and the American Commercial Attache, at the home of Mr. Julean Arnold, 114 Kiaochow Road, in honor of Secretary Huston and party.

The dinner which was planned by the Chinese General Chamber of Commerce for Friday night has been postponed until Saturday night.

HUSTON INVITED TO ADDRESS PAN-PACIFIC MEETING

U. S. Secretary Of Commerce Asked To Speak At Carlton Saturday

Assistant Secretary of Commerce Huston of the United States, who will arrive in Shanghai on Friday morning on the Cutter Mojave, is expected to be one of the principal speakers at the third annual meeting of the Pan-Pacific Association to be held at the Carlton Cafe on Saturday noon beside the list of noted speakers from Pacific countries.

Mr. George A. Fitch, secretary of the local association, yesterday wirelessed him on board, extending him the invitation to participate at the gathering, which this year will be held in commemoration of the 408th anniversary of the discovery of the Pacific Ocean by Vasco Nunez de Balboa. The program will include speeches, Hawaiian music, election of officers and reports by various committees.

The tiffin will not be confined to members but will be open to the public, ladies and gentlemen. A large number of guests have already made reservations with the secretary but Mr. Fitch urges that all desiring seating accommodation must communicate with him at once.

BRITISH NOTE ASKS ALLIES FOR HELP AT PENINSULA

TO REPLY TODAY

France "Attached To Principle Of Free Straits"

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Sept. 12.—A French semi-official statement says that a Note was presented at the Quai d'Orsay today declaring that the British Government reckons on the help of its Allies to insure the defense of Constantinople and the Gallipoli Peninsula. The Note proposes that urgent and military questions should be for the moment entrusted to the Allied High Commissioners at Constantinople. The French Government will probably decide on Thursday the nature of its replies to Britain and Italy. The statement adds that without prejudice to Thursday's decisions or any measures which may be contemplated, it is already certain that the French Government is as much attached to the principle of the freedom of the Straits as the British Government.

London, September 13.—Delayed accounts of the entry of the Turks into Smyrna show that it was followed by considerable disorder during the first 36 hours. The Bazaars were systematically looted, while practically every shop in the Armenian quarter, except those foreign-owned, was emptied.

Order has since been restored and arrangements are being made to repatriate the refugees. The Allied naval detachments have been re-embarked.

It appears that notwithstanding the breaking up of the Greek resistance in the face of the Turkish advance the former's evacuation of Smyrna was well organised, and their base depots thoroughly cleared. The Greek failure was apparently largely due to a general strike by the rank and file, which was intensified by the officers' lack of confidence in General Hadjianestis, the Greek Commander-in-chief.

London, Sept. 13.—France has officially signified her agreement with Britain on the subject of the freedom of the Straits, and expressed her readiness to discuss any settlement providing legitimate Turkish aspirations are safeguarded.

(China Press Service)

Paris, Sept. 12.—According to the Paris Edition of the New York Herald, the Allies may not have the plain sailing they say they anticipate with the Turks at the forthcoming armistice conference.

Such may be inferred from the statement of Ferid Bey, representing Angora in Paris and Turkish delegate to the conference for discussing peace terms.

Ferid Bey asserts that the peace terms will be substantially what Turkey has always contended must be the sole basis of her intergrity. He said further:

"We have always claimed Smyrna and Adrianople, and although the British occupation of Constantinople prevents our immediate taking over of the latter (Adrianople) the British must remember that there is another route to Adrianople, via Mesopotamia.

"We hardly think Mr. Lloyd George could take a chance in that direction But we shall go to Adrianople.

"Regarding the Russians' interest in the future control of Constantinople we hold that their voice eventually must be heard. We already have a friendly accord with the Soviets, but that does not mean we are in favor of Bolshevism for Turkey or that there is any possibility of Russian internationalism guiding our policies.

"We believe the Greek attempt to capture Constantinople was planned with the tacit agreement of the British.

"The Angora Government intends to leave the Sultan in charge of the religious and intellectual zone of Constantinople, but as the Sultan is dominated by British Generals, he cannot be trusted to sign decrees of an economic, financial or political

Remaking Old Newspaper Into New

Remaking newspapers.

THE suitability of Bentonite, a clay found in Wyoming, for removing ink from old newspapers so that they may be used again as clear, white, standard newsprint, has been demonstrated by the U. S. Forestry Service on both experimental and commercial scales. The clay is added in powdered form, and, because of its highly colloidal character, finely divided state and suspension qualities, the particles of carbon removed from the repulped newspaper in the beater, adhere to the particles of clay and are carried off through the washing screens in the beater. The experiments were conducted at the Forest Products Laboratory at Madison, Wis.

ADMIRAL LINE TO INAUGURATE 12-DAY SCHEDULE

Offices Here Also Notified Shipping Board Joins Conference

The Admiral Line announces in accordance with cable advices received that effective with the steamer President Madison, sailing from Seattle December 21, due Shanghai January 7, and sailing homeward-bound January 25, there will be a sailing every 12 days instead of every 14, as heretofore, between regular Oriental ports of call and Seattle.

This will obviate some of the trouble experienced in the past by shippers due to parallel sailings with other lines and will give Oriental ports a more frequent mail service.

The Admiral line offices here are also in receipt of cable advices that the United States Shipping Board effective September 1 has joined the China Homeward Conference.

German Retailers Use Foreign Rates In Fixing Prices

(Reuter's Service)

London, Sept. 12.—A protest on the part of the German Federation of Trades Unions shows that the practice of employing a foreign rate of exchange as the basis of calculation of market prices and means of payment has now spread to the retail trade.

Reuter's Berlin correspondent states that the Federation is asking the Government to prevent this in connection with home transactions.

CHEKIANG-KIANSU PACT IS SIGNED, OFFICIALS SAY

Local Authorities Announce Termination Of Long Controversy

An absolute understanding has been reached and perfect harmony now exists between the military authorities of Chekiang and Kiangsu, according to a statement made by a high local Chinese official yesterday to THE CHINA PRESS. This has been effected as a result of the exchange of emissaries between General Lu Yung-hsiang and Tuchun Chi Shih-yuan.

Much anxiety was felt here and Chekiang following the recent internecine war on account of the extreme political inclinations of the two provinces, which occupy the most important section of the Yangtsze Valley. Several clashes of ideas were pointed out by the adherents of the two cliques, and the situation appeared somewhat ugly at certain times when rumormongers, militarists, politicians and intriguers joined in irritating both provinces to precipitate a showdown.

However, General Lu and General Chi, realising the calamity which would follow such a clash, began a serious effort to smooth over the differences, according to the local official, who is in close touch with both. Representatives were exchanged to express the goodwill of each faction and both reiterated their desire to protect the lives and property of the people under their jurisdiction and their desire to be exempt from the general mix-up. Misunderstandings were eliminated gradually until now it is definitely announced that the authorities will maintain the status quo of the two provinces.

The news is received here with gratification by the local Chinese, especially the merchant class in view of tension that had been created by the open split as the result of the war.

Tariff Commission Will Ask Mandate To Abolish Likin

OFFICERS AND OWNERS OF CLOSED BANK AND EXCHANGE MAY BE SUED

Shareholders Face Possibility Of Civil Actions Aggregating Upwards Of Twenty Million Dollars, Report

ITALIAN LAWS MAY BE INVOKED

Chinese Compradore And Son Stand Chance Of Having To Defend Selves Against Claims For Liability By Liquidators.

Former officials and shareholders of the Far Eastern Bank and the International Gold and Silver Currency, Stock and Produce Exchange, Ltd., stand a good chance of finding themselves involved in suits aggregating upwards of $20,000,000 as the result of investigations into the financial maze of the two institutions closed on Saturday by the Italian Consular Court.

Shareholders of the Far Eastern Bank and the Exchange will be hard hit by the bank's closing, it is understood, because the original shareholders, whether or not they are registered holders of shares at the present moment are liable for the unpaid part of the capital of the two institutions, according to the liquidator. The Italian law, unlike the American and British law, makes the original shareholders civilly responsible for the unpaid capital, for under Italian law no share of a joint stock company can be transferred until the shares are fully paid up. Only when the full amount of the capital has been paid up does the original shareholders' responsibility cease, according to the liquidator.

Under this interpretation of the Italian law the original shareholders of the two institutions may be forced to pay up to an amount of $20,000,000.

Mr. Di Villa, the original Managing Director of the Far Eastern Bank was seen by a CHINA PRESS reporter last night and asked if he could throw any light on the very complicated situation developing out of the liquidation of the bank. He said that he was not familiar with the present state of affairs. "I resigned on July 7 before the present trouble started. In order to protect myself I had the books closed over and as a result received from both the bank and the liquidator a statement that the affairs of both were in good order when I left and absolving me from any blame in connection with subsequent developments." This statement was confirmed by the liquidator.

Another interesting angle developed yesterday when it became known that a prominent compradore and his son may be held to be liable for a large sum in connection with the shares of the International Exchange. These two men are said to have subscribed for about 100,000 of the 400,000 shares issued. These shares were of $50 par value. Under the Italian law three-tenths of the subscribed capital of a company must be paid up and deposited in a bank before registration can be accomplished. These two men therefore paid up $15 per share or a total of $1,500,000.

MAKE BIG PROFIT

When speculation in the shares started these men are said to have sold at prices ranging as high as Taels 30. In order to put an end to speculation an order was issued forbidding transfer of shares. But by that time the original subscribers had realised large sums, getting as we have pointed out, as high as Taels 30 for shares on which they had paid down only $15. The second buyer, was, of course, expected to assume the liability for the remainder due on each share, i. e., $35. But, again under the Italian law, as shares not fully paid but transferred the original subscriber remains liable for the balance due and on this particular purchase therefore of 100,000 shares, this man and his son may still be called upon for $3,500,000.

It is not likely however that the affairs of the exchange are so involved as to require any such sum in the liquidation, but if it were to be brought out of liquidation, we are informed, the original purchasers of shares might be called upon for the deferred payments as indicated above.

We are informed that the investigations already made revealed that the bank had also lost heavily in exchange—an estimate of Tls. 100,000 losses has been made—and that very heavy losses were sustained by the bank in gold bars. Heavy purchases of several months ago are still unsold, and total liabilities are not yet known.

There are also large outstanding contracts with the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, the International Bank, the American Express Company, the Chinese-American Bank and others, according to reports.

DEPOSITORS PAID

Just before the bank closed its doors the liquidators paid off depositors who had current accounts in the bank, which, however, was not a heavy disbursement as

The Taiyo Maru, of the T.K.K. sailed last night at midnight for San Francisco, via Honolulu, and is due to arrive on the other side on October 8. Passengers and mails for the Taiyo left the Customs Jetty last night at 7 o'clock.

Following the Taiyo, the next mail for America will be taken by the President Cleveland of Pacific Mail next Tuesday. The China of China Mail will leave Hongkong on Saturday and is also due to sail from Shanghai for Japan ports, Honolulu, and San Francisco next Tuesday.

A big mail from America is to arrive next Tuesday on the Admiral Line steamer President Jackson. The vessel is due at Yokohama from Seattle today. The Nile of China Mail was due at Yokohama from San Francisco and Honolulu Tuesday last and is expected to arrive in Shanghai via Kobe and Nagasaki next Monday. The Nile is to dock at the China Merchants' Central or Lower Wharf and will sail for Hongkong direct on Tuesday.

Mail for European ports will be dispatched next Saturday on the M.M. steamer Amazone. Ordinary matter will close at the British and Chinese Post Offices at 7.30 a.m. Saturday, and registered at 5 p.m. Friday.

The Amazone is due to arrive in Shanghai from Kobe about 7 o'clock this morning and the tender with outbound passengers will leave the French mail jetty at 9 o'clock Saturday morning. Heavy baggage should be delivered to the Company's office before noon on Friday.

Mail from European ports is to arrive next Monday on the M. M. liner Angers. The vessel comes from Marseilles via Suez.

Chekiang Victims Of Typhoon Given Grant Of $50,000

At the recent meeting of the Governing Board of the Chinese-Foreign Famine Relief Committee, the Board, after hearing reports of the severe famine conditions in the Province of Chekiang caused by the recent typhoons and floods, voted the sum of $50,000 to give aid in this Province. The action was taken after investigation by the International Famine Relief Committees at Hangchow and Ningpo.

Tokio Announces Stand On Parleys

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, Sept. 12.—The Cabinet today considered the questions referred from Changchun on which the decision is reliably believed to be that Japan is willing to discuss subjects concerning herself alone with representatives of all Russia provided such subjects do not go beyond the scope of the principles of the Dairen Draft Agreement.

the bank had very few banking clients, confining itself almost entirely to dealings in gold and silver.

The liquidators are very anxious to locate a Japanese customer of the bank who left Shanghai just two weeks before the institution was closed owing the bank Tls. 100,000.

Previous reports of the financial condition of the Far Eastern Bank were that the subscribed capital of Lira 12,000,000 was fully paid up by shareholders, but the liquidator's investigations have shown that the full amount has not been paid up and the exact amount paid is now the subject of a careful inquiry.

The International Gold, Silver, Stock and Produce Exchange, which took over the Chartered Stock and Produce Exchange had a capitalisation of $20,000,000 of which $6,000,000 was supposed to be paid fully up, but it was said yesterday that the paid up capital amounts to less than $6,000,000 and is also the subject of careful investigation by the liquidators.

The two institutions were originally Italian concerns, registered in the Italian Consulate and included influential Chinese backing. As the result of several financial deals, however, Japanese interests secured control of the bank through the purchase of about 70 percent of the shares on the market and began removing Italian and Chinese employes and substituting Japanese and Chinese-Japanese for them.

The bank was closed by the Italian Consular Court on last Saturday because italian interests were no longer represented. Two liquidators were appointed and immediately took charge of the bank's affairs.

When the Chartered Exchange became involved in financial difficulties, the exchange mortgaged all their property to the International Exchange, the International agreeing to pay in $6,000,000. As a matter of fact only $800,000 was advanced, and that amount was used by the Chartered Exchange to liquidate their losses.

It is also said that the property of the institutions on Hankow Road, said to have been purchased for Tls. 1,250,000, had been mortgaged to the seller for Tls. 500,000.

The Liquidators may be able to reopen the bank later, we are informed, if present plans for straightening out the involved finances of the institution materialise.

Reports Of Fengtien Mobilisation False

(Eastern News Agency)

Mukden, September 13.—Rumor of a recurrence of the Fengtien-Chihli war is being freely circulated here. Notwithstanding the report that both factions have already mobilised their respective troops, no Fengtien troops have yet been mobilised, and there are no signs of the situation between the two provinces being so much strained as rumor has it.

It is reported in certain political circles here that Marshal Chang has a firm intention to revenge himself upon General Wu Pei-fu and to mobilise his troops again next Autumn. Marshal Chang has hitherto been strenuously making warlike preparations by enlarging the arsenal at Mukden, thereby rapidly increasing its capacity. The Manchurian war-lord has also been paying much attention to the reorganisation and drilling of the Fengtien troops. Those who are earnest advocates of civil administration of the Far Eastern Provinces are pointing to the disadvantage of re-opening hostilities so soon, and are advising Marshal Chang to take a negative attitude for the present in order to foster high spirits among the troops. Marshal Chang has, it is reported, decided to take the defensive on the front line of Shanhaikwan and never to take a provocative attitude.

The Chinese General Chamber of Commerce of Tientsin, for fear that the rumor of the recurrence of the Fengtien-Chihli war may seriously affect its commercial transactions, yesterday addressed a telegram to Marshal Chang Tso-lin, saying that the reason the Chihli troops have of late been concentrated in the region along the Tientsin-Pukow Railway is merely to subjugate bandits there without any other object in view. At the same time it requests Marshal Chang to notify the masses in Manchuria the futility of the said rumor in order that no unnecessary panic be created among the local Chinese merchants.

FIUME NO LONGER A RENO FOR ITALY

Couples Cannot Regain Their Citizenship If They Go There For Divorce

(China Press Service)

Rome, July 29.—Italian lawyers specialising in divorce cases are practically jobless. Their only place of business—Fiume—has been closed down not because of lack of orders but because the Catholic Populist party has forced the Government to refuse the restoration of Italian citizenship to couples becoming Fiumans temporarily.

Since the D'Annunzio coup the divorce industry has been one of the most flourishing on the Dalmatian coast, rivaling the Maraschino cherry business. D'Annunzio himself was divorced in Fiume, displaying the ease of the process under the new system.

Before the war it has been a practice of rich but inharmonious couples visiting the city to become Hungarians, swearing allegiance to the Hungarian King and Austrian Emperor, but eventually they recovered their Italian citizenship.

Following the example of the soldier-poet more than a thousand couples rushed to Fiume and after six months' residence there and the payment of a fee of 15,000 lire gained their freedom. This alarmed the Catholics, who promptly passed a law consigning such couples to perpetual Fiuman citizenship, and now an angry horde of lawyers has returned from Fiume, some to get themselves elected to Parliament where with tears in their eyes they will ask the Chamber why there was so much bloodshed to recover Fiume if it is now to be regarded as a strange city. Others have joined the Fascisti movement and threaten direct action, while still others will occupy their time preventing household tragedies while awaiting the repeal of the objectionable laws.

Mandate Orders Arrest Of Three

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Sept. 13.—In accordance with the recommendation of Mr. Kao Fug-hung, Minister of Communications, a Mandate was issued last night which orders the arrest of Messrs. Chen Hung-nien, Ho Juei-chang and Chow Ching-cho.

The mandate explains that inquiries show that the recent strikes on the Peking-Suaiyuan and Peking-Hankow Railways were due to agitation instigated by these men, evidently with the object of embarrassing the present administration.

POSTERS CARRY WARNING AGAINST TRAFFIC DANGERS

Increase Shown In Number Of August Street Accidents Over Last Year

Comment is carried in today's issue of the Municipal Gazette on the recently inaugurated campaign to reduce the number of traffic accidents in the streets of the Settlement. One of the measures taken is the issuance of large Safety First 'Ambulance Posters,' which made their appearance in August and now are posted at known danger points throughout the Settlement.

These posters depict an injured man on a stretcher beside an ambulance and they bear an inscription, a translation of which runs as follows:

"Pedestrian! Take note!

"Many accidents have occurred recently near this spot which were mostly due to the carelessness of pedestrians walking on or crossing the road in a heedless manner. Before crossing a road, always look to your right and then to your left"

In addition to this and other work which is being carried out in the streets, the police illustrated and printed safety first posters have been reproduced on magic lantern slides in colored groups, and are being shown during the intervals at cinema houses patronised by Chinese.

The following is a comparative table of accidents for August 1922 and 1921:

1922.	Accidents	Injured	Killed
Trams	33	23	—
Motor vehicles	156	70	4

HOW TO "GROW" ANEW COMPLEXION

These are the days of "hustling." In a week we see and do more than our grandmothers did in a year. We are gradually turning nature to be our servant; we use her great forces against herself. We have conquered sea and sky, now our doctors are fighting not only disease, but old age. There is talk of rejuvenating human beings by the injection of animal glands, but as yet, only the few can avail themselves of the treatment.

There is, however, one secret of perpetual youth that is in the reach of everyone. Scientists now realise that the only way of keeping the skin young and fresh is to examine Nature's methods and to find some way of imitating her.

SCIENTIFIC BEAUTY.

In order to explain the new method of keeping the complexion perpetually youthful, one must understand something of the nature of the skin. A baby's skin is always clear and smooth because the outer layer is always invisibly peeling off, and new layers are forming just as fast underneath, so that the exposed skin is always fresh, unwrinkled and "new."

For the first few years of our lives, this peeling is a purely natural process, but as we grow older, we gradually lose the power of throwing off our old soiled outer skins, so that our complexions become lined and yellow, and the new skin has no chance to show itself.

A few years ago, a scientific chemist realised that a little-known substance called mercolised wax, was exactly what was needed to "keep nature up to the mark." It appears that this substance, which is now universally obtainable, gently and painlessly assists nature in throwing off the soiled outer cuticle. The skin is thus perpetually renewed, and a clear youthful complexion can be preserved to any age. (Advt.)

SOMETHING ABOUT
"THE FOUR HORSEMEN OF THE APOCALYPSE"

The translation to the screen of this, the greatest work of the famous Spanish novelist, Vicente Blasco Ibanez marks an event unprecedented in the history of motion pictures. When "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" made its appearance in the book shops of America; it was hailed as the master story of the age and its author crowned as the greatest living writer. So sensational was the success of the book that the first editions were rapidly exhausted and in an amazingly short time it had gone through more than 150 printings. In all probability every person in the United States who reads fiction at all has been thrilled by this story. In this adaptation by Metro to the silver sheet the narrative has been preserved in all its sweeping grandeur, its wonderful background and its tense and moving love romance that holds the interest spellbound. Its scenes are laid in the rolling plains of the Argentine; on the high seas; in the heart of London and then in the center of gay and beautiful Paris. Its characters, drawn by the hand of an artist in letters, weave a spell in the imagination and impress the memory, for they are living beings, more real in the printed page than are many in the flesh. It would require a small volume to set forth in detail the plot of this extraordinary story; it is so bewildering in its immensity that its screen presentation required a cast of fifty principals and an ensemble of 12,500; miles of territory were utilized for its magnificent exterior scenes and the cost of its production mounted to the hitherto untouched figure of a million dollars.

CHOLERA NOT YET ERADICATED, SAYS HEALTH REPORT

Death Rate Among Foreigners Below Normal, However, Through August

Public health conditions throughout the International Settlement for the month of August continued to be satisfactory, says the monthly report of the Health Department which is published in today's issue of the Municipal Gazette and though cholera still is present in a moderate degree no deaths of foreigners were caused by the disease and the death rate among foreigners, in fact, was below normal while the death rate among Chinese remained about normal.

In the course of the month four cases of cholera among foreigners were verified bacteriologically in the Municipal Laboratory.

The number of cases admitted to the Municipal Isolation Hospital for Chinese and to the two Chinese Red Cross Cholera Hospitals from within the settlement was 283 and the number of deaths, 81.

This gives a mortality of about 11 percent, which speaks very well for the efficacy of the treatment.

Educative measures were energetically carried on by the Health Inspectors, and perhaps it is not too sanguine to believe that these have helped to keep the disease within moderate limits.

No relaxation should be made in observance of the instructions of the Public Health and Cholera notices concerning food and drink for past experience has shown that September may be a dangerous month, not only for cholera, but also for other intestinal infections, especially dysentery.

Russian Volunteer Fleet Case Resumed And Again Adjourned

Brief Hearing In Mixed Court Is Marked By Series Of Clashes Of Counsel

Another adjournment of a week of the much involved Russian Volunteer Fleet case, so-called, which involves a suit for wages alleged to be due by members of the crew of the steamer Erivan, was ordered yesterday in the Mixed Court by Assessor Ivanov after a series of verbal clashes between contending counsel and after testimony from one witness had been heard.

The men of the Erivan are advancing a claim aggregating 35,000 gold roubles and a reason for yesterday's adjournment was the failure of four witnesses to appear, as they were unable to leave the ship due to rough weather.

Dr. Fischer appeared for the present agent of the Company, Mr. Elleded, while Mr. L. W. Hartigan appeared for the plaintiffs.

Boatswain Yeigmann, of the Erivan, testified that his claim against the Russian Volunteer Fleet for back pay was gold roubles 1,359. When he first joined the ship he drew 55 gold roubles per month which was later increased to 90 roubles. This afterwards was reduced. When the salaries were increased a circular was sent round to the crew and also when they were cut. The plaintiff contended that he did not see the circular announcing the reduction in the salary.

Asked whether he was willing to settle on the same terms as several members of the crew of his boat had done, plaintiff replied: "I have brought this case before the Court and leave it to the Court to decide on what basis I should be paid."

Cross-examined by Dr. Fischer plaintiff stated that he received from the captain of the vessel $10 on account of wages. In Vladivostok up to June, 1921, he received $46.80, while up to December, 1920, he was paid in full. From the Shanghai agent he received in all $105.

Asked whether he was prepared to recognise the last circular lowering the wages, plaintiff replied: "I will only recognise it if this Court recognises it."

Are you prepared to accept the salary based on the circular if we prove to the Court that the circular is a genuine one?—I do not know.

Mr. Fischer mentioned to the Court that the agents were desirous of coming to a settlement on the basis already arrived at with the crew of the Astrakan and the majority of the crew of the Erivan. Out of 39 members of the crew of the Erivan, Dr. Ficher said, the Company had settled with 33.

Tang Nomination As Premier Is Sent Back To President

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Sept. 13.—Three hundred and forty-one members were present in the House of Representatives this afternoon when the nomination of Mr. Tang Shao-yi to the Premiership came before the House.

The Chief Secretary of the Presidency had scarcely concluded recounting Mr. Tang's record on behalf of his nominator, President Li Yuan-hung, when a member asked whether the Government had received a personal reply. He contended that the bill should be sent back to the Government as the House could not vote unless it were known authoritatively that Mr. Tang Shao-yi would accept.

Various speakers supported this view while others sturdily demanded a vote on the bill. The House soon divided into two parties. The Chairman, Mr. Wu Ching-lien, then propsed a vote on the question of whether the bill itself should be voted on. This was adopted, resulting in 207 votes being cast in favor of sending back the bill.

CLAMORS MADE TO PROBE MYSTERIES OF GIRL SUICIDE

Tragedy In Office Of Chinese Journal Of Commerce Drawing Comment

Residents of Tungtingshan, the former home of Miss Zia Tsang-tseng, the 24 year-old mailing clerk employed by the Chinese Journal of Commerce who committed suicide last week in her office, are agitating for a thorough investigation of the conduct of Dr. F. C. Tong, part owner of the paper, who is alleged to have borrowed $5,000 from the deceased last year during the exchange boom and failed to return the money.

According to the stories given by the mother and the sister of Miss Zia to the committee of the guild of the Tungtingshan residents, Dr. Tong tried to interest the deceased lady in May, 1921, in the investment of her money in the China Commercial Trust Company that Tong was organising. Deceased, they say, paid over the sum of $5.000 to Tong, while her sister also gave him $1,500. Although the sister had received the shares for the full amount, Miss Zia Tsang-tseng never got hers, according to the information of the committee.

In May of this year, their story went on, Miss Zia insisted on having her shares. Instead of handling them over the committee was told, Tong suggested that the young lady should marry him as his concubine and that thereafter he would be responsible for all household expenses that she required.

Because of the insult and Tong's failure to return the money and to hand over the scripts, continued the committee's statement, the woman no longed wanted to live. Twice she attempted to end her misery and both times was revived by Tong. Further demands were made on Dr. Tong, who was obliged to execute three documents, one payable a year from May, a second, two years from that date and the third, three years.

The committee ascertained that the money handed over to Tong by the deceased consisted of savings the family had for the maintenance of her mother as well as proceeds of loans raised by her. When she was sure there was no chance for her to recover the money she had invested, she decided to die.

Before her death, she told her sister, the story goes on, that she no longer cared to live but that after her death, she (the sister) would find a detailed statement of the past happenings. When the suicide took place, the sister told the committee, she went to the office of the deceased where she saw Dr. Tong already there. She further noticed that the clothes of the deceased were unbottoned. She was unable to find the detailed statement which her sister promised in spite of her efforts.

The local Chinese press has been making strong comments, contending that a thorough investigation is necessary. The newspapers also point out that the tragedy will set back vocational education and frighten away the young women from decent employment.

Certain members of the Cantonese Guild, of which Dr. Tong is a leader, are contemplating certain proceedings to clarify the mystery that today surrounds the death of the unfortunate girl.

Baseball Dinner Tonight At The American Club

This is the night of the Big Gorge! This evening, at 9 G. X., sharp, the members of the Shanghai baseball club, including players too numerous to mention will park their dogs under the chow benches at the American club for the big annual feed.

In view of the well known fact that a ball player feeding his face is one of the strangest and most awe inspiring spectacles in the world .Manager Gallop nas arranged a row of bleacher seats around the dining room and will sell tickets of admission to outsiders, thus insuring a fund for new uniforms and equipment next season. Herby hasn't yet announced the scale of prices for witnessing this novel entertainment, beyond saying that the front row seats would be cheaper than the others. Those in the front row, the manager explained, will have to carry umbrellas to protect themselves when the athletes begin splashing their soup, and as this will cause them to miss part of the show the manager thinks they should have a discount. To offset this, however, the occupants of the back tier are to pay extra, as their's will be the best vantage point for witnessing the war correspondents and umpires struggle to keep peas from falling off their knives. The club caterer has guaranteed to keep mashed potatoes off the menu.

The dinner will be in the nature of a farewell to Manager Gallop, who is leaving soon for an extended business trip to Japan.

President McIntyre will preside, and has promised that there will be no long speeches.

SPARROWS NEVER GOT CONTRACTS

These Travelling Ballplayers Lived From Boot To Mouth

The old Park Sparrows were deadly but lazy rivals of the Dairy Sparrows. Another organisation of Fairmount Park ball players who could make one sandwich last three Summers.

The municipal club grounds were about one mile apart, and it was the habit of the Dairy Sparrows to journey the distance by easy stages, stopping every few ambles, pick mulberries off the lower limbs of dwarf trees.

They played afternoon games of about two innings each and went up to the bat praying for rain.

Managers of small town teams like Darby, Ambler and Dad's Theatrical Boarding House would look over the boys and sign 'em up for their Saturday games. A five-case note was tops. But it helped the boys to weather a tough Sunday leaning up against a soft lamp-post.

Although opposed to early rising the Sparrows would borrow enough of a stranger's bicycle to enable them to pedal to the park. Halts were made to levy tribute on unescorted milk bottles and loaves of bread, a crime that was punishable in Pennsylvania by sudden indigestion. The Sparrows were honest past this point on the menu. There is no record of any of 'em nabbing venison steaks or caviar from a front doorstep.

These hoboes of baseball traveled from town to town in limousines of the gondola type Capacity, 20,000 pounds and six nokies.

Few of 'em lasted more than one game a town. Monday morning would find them all back under the Big Tree moving just enough to keep in the shade. They all had the same alibi.

If a Sparrow was a second baseman, the small town second baseman was the manager's brother-in-law. Same thing if the Sparrow was a pitcher, catcher or outfielder. The bird whose job he was after always happened to be tied to the manager by the clannish bonds of matrimony.

There is one thing that village fans won't stand for from an underpaid stranger. That's an error. When the visiting Sparrow booted one that lost the game for the home town his exit was always in the direction the ball was traveling. Experience told 'em to resign on the run and to let their dust be their explanation and their absence their lawyer.

They never stopped to pick up the ball.

Kenny Williams Hits 36th Homer

(China Press Service)

St. Louis, Sept. 11.—Kenneth Williams of the St. Louis Browns clouted his thirty-sixth home run of the season here yesterday when Detroit trimmed the local aspirants for an American League pennant by a score of 8-3. Williams got his four-base wallop with two on, thus accounting for the home club's total score.

Bobby Veach lammed two circuit bangs getting both home runs off Urban Shocker, who was chased by the heavy Tiger hitting.

Joe Jackson In "Comeback" Effort

New York, July 22.—Billed as "Shoeless Joe" Jackson and introduced as the greatest outfielder of all times, the former White Sox star made his first public speech here last night in his campaign to get back into baseball.

"I ain't guilty of nothing. I'm standing on my reputation as a clean-cut, honest ball player, and asking the jury of fans for a square deal," Jackson told a crowd of about 200 in an uptown hall.

"I ain't wantin' back in professional baseball, but I want to play with the semi-pros. If Landis wants me back in the big leagues I'll be pleased to go back.

"I played my hardest in the 1919 world's series. I fielded 1,000 and batted .375 in the series. You can't throw no ball games that way. I tried hard to win, and no one had more heart bleedin' than I did about that series. I ain't sayin' that them other fellows was guilty and I ain't sayin' they was innocent. On my word as an honest gen'leman, I don't know nothin' about crooked work. I was just out there playing my head off to win."

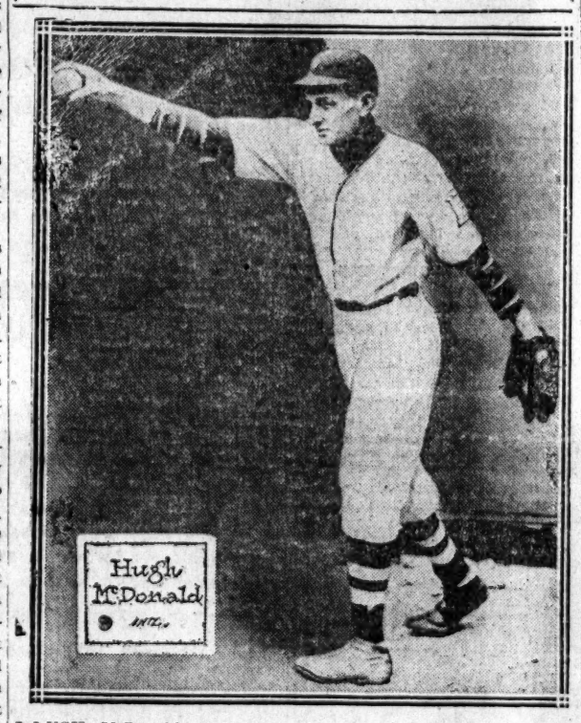
Legless Pitcher Is Winning Laurels



HUGH McDonald, of Kearney, N. Y., long ago "canned" the "T" in "can't." There's no such word in his vocabulary. Though minus both legs as the result of an accident, he took up ball playing on a home team and won a reputation for himself as a pitcher and home run hitter. Another player runs the bases for him. He is shown pitching, standing on his artificial legs.

Annual Ladies Lawn Tennis Championship

The annual lawn tennis tournament for the ladies singles championship of Shanghai will start on October 2. Secretary M. B. Brown of the Lawn Tennis Association announced yesterday. Entries will close on Monday, September 25 and a record number are expected to participate as special efforts are being made by the Tennis Association committee to create interest. Many who failed to enter the tournament in previous years are expected to be in the fight for the 1922 title.

The tourney will be the last of a highly successful season here which was featured by the entertainment of the University of California tennis team in addition to the local championship tournaments and a benefit for the Swatow Typhoon Fund.

In the tennis League, six matches are scheduled for today when a better line will be had on the chances of the Shanghai Recreation Club and Portuguese Sporting Association for the championship. The Cricket Club is no longer a factor, in all probability, the organisation suffering by the transfer of Parbury and Mansel-Smith to other ports.

The following is the schedule for today:

DIVISION I

Japanese Club v. Cercle Sportif
Recreation Club v. Country Club
Columbia Country Club v. Portuguese S. A.

DIVISION II

Cercle Sportif v. Japanese Club
Police v. Recreation Club
Portuguese S. A. v. Columbia Country Club

Dairen Has Risen In Importance As Seaport From 42nd To 2nd Place

(Chung Mei Service)

Peking, Sept. 8.—Writing in The Mid Pacific Magazine, the very active organ of the Pan Pacific Union, A. G. Wood gives the following as the story of Dairen:

From forty-second place to second among the ports of China. That in briefest form is the story of the development of Dairen since its opening to the trade of the world by treaty with Japan in 1907. Though the development of Dairen was then well under way, its whole history from the desolation of an insignificant fishing village dates back only another decade, to 1888, when the Kwangtung territory was leased to Russia for a 25-year term.

First called Tailenwan by the Chinese, meaning "Great Connection," it was renamed by the Russians, Dalny, "the Far Away," later to be named again to Dairen, which is the Japanese rendering of the Chinese Tailen. Its names have had almost a prophetic significance. It has indeed become a place of great connections with ships coming to its splendid harbor from all the corners of the world, and with the main line of the South Manchuria Railway connecting it up at Mukden and Changchun with other lines which put it in direct touch in normal times with the far away metropolises of the West. In the Russian name there was something almost prophetic of a less fortunate future, for to those who began its improvement with so much energy it proved an empty dream. Now many among the guests of its big hotels, ranking with the best of the Far East, are refugees from their own land which once held sway over this far away place.

FREE OF ICE

The advantage of Dairen, or Dalny, over the Russian port of Vladivostok is that the former is ice-free the year round, or even at the coldest has so little ice as does not interfere with heavy shipping, whereas the latter port is ice bound three or four months. These advantages, which thus attracted the Russians, appealed no less to the Japanese when, by virtue of the Portsmouth Treaty in 1905, Japan came into possession of the 25-year lease of the Kwantung territory and the railway through Manchuria from Changchun to Dalny, its branch lines and all rights and properties attached to it. The original term of this lease was to expire in 1923, but it was extended to a total of 99 years, or to 1997, by the Chino-Japanese Treaty of May 25, 1915.

When the South Manchuria Railway Company was organised in 1906 to take over the ceded part of the Chinese Eastern, Dairen was made its headquarters and southern terminus. Then began such development by the Japanese as has produced a city more beautiful, more imposing and more convenient than any in their own Island Empire. In the case of Dairen, however, they had a splendid start given them by the Russians. The city had been laid out on a magnificent plan, which, to a great extent, has been followed by the Japanese. In the center, like the hub of a wheel, is Center Circle with broad tree-lined streets radiating from it.

Dairen has miles of well-paved streets, another thing which sets it off from most other cities of the Far East. These streets are traversed for 29 miles by electric tram lines, and suburban lines connect the city with two seaside resorts, Hoshigaura and Robotan. In addition to tramways, local transportation is facilitated by public motor-car service, and by many rikishas and bashas. The bashas are the old Russian droskies which the Russians abandoned when they evacuated the city. In the 24 hours' interval between the evacuation and the occupation by the Japanese, these were buried by the Chinese, to be resurrected after the war and put into service for hire. The telephone, telegraph and postal systems provide better service than do the large cities in Japan, and recently a wireless telegraph system has been installed. Sanitary arrangements have not been overlooked, and the city is well supplied with water from an underground river three miles to the southwest, through a system costing over 1,000,000 yen.

A STUDY OF PRODUCTS

Upon the opening up of Manchuria, the South Manchuria Railway undertook the scientific investigation of the indigenous products of this rich country to determine their greatest possible utility. For this purpose the company's general laboratory was established at Dairen, and here industrial and sanitary experiments for the whole of South Manchuria, with very satisfactory results, especially in manufacturing soap from bean oil, paper from kaoliang stalks, Chinese spirits from kaoliang grain, lactic oil from the residue from the distillation of the spirits, glass from silicious earth, pottery from the clay and tussah silk from silkworms which feed on wild oak. This laboratory also makes public and private analysis.

While Dairen was bound to grow anyway, the remarkable expansion of the bean industry has been one of the principal factors in its development. According to a recent report by the Dairen Chamber of Commerce, oil mills in Kwangtung Leased Territory number 93, most of which, of course, are in Dairen.

As a business center, Dairen is the foremost city of Manchuria, its business firms including agencies of many well-known foreign concerns represented in the Far East, as well as the prominent Japanese firms. Its importance as a financial center is attested by the 13 banks operating in the city, and its commercial importance by the 60 or more shipping firms and agencies which have been established. Its value as an important link in the great chain of passenger service that stretches across Asia is shown in the fact that in one year 277,401 passengers passed through the railway station.

The South Manchuria Railway has, of course, been the most important factor in the development of Dairen and South Manchuria in general. Its activities have entered every economic phase of life. Whichever way one turns, "S.M.R." or the company's mark —(This mark is in the form of a monogram of "M" and a cross-section of a rail looking like an "I.")—for "Manchuria Rail" meets the eye. There is no diversity of cars such as one sees at the railway stations in America —all are S. M. R.'s. The hotels and hospitals are S. M. R. hotels and hospitals. The great Fushun Collieries are S. M. R.-operated; so are the steel works at Anchan. It runs steamers to Shanghai, via Tsingtao, and to Tientsin, and operates all the Dairen Harbor works. The cities are lighted with S.M.R. electricity or S.M.R. gas. The boys and girls and young men and young women are educated in S.M.R. schools, and all, old and young, take their outings in S.M.R. parks. It would probably be too much to expect such a diversity of interests, especially in a new country, to be conducted without cause of complaint. The S.M.R. has by no means escaped, but recently has been the object of many charges of graft and corruption by the people and the papers of Japan, and its affairs have been the cause of much parliamentary wrangling.

BEAN STORAGE

During 1919 the railway company inaugurated the system of mixed storage of beans—a new departure in the handling of this commodity. Under the new system, beans accepted for deposit by the railway stations are examined by the station examiner and graded according to quality (special, ordinary and inferior) and season. A certificate is issued to the depositor, which will entitle him to draw from the mixed storage depot on the Dairen (or Newchwang) wharves so many piculs of beans of the same quality and season. The gunny bags used in packing are also examined for quality (new; old, first quality, old, second quality), and in cases where the grade of bags received and that of the bags delivered is different, the loss or gain thereon is adjusted by paying to or collecting from the depositor the difference in the value of the bags according to the schedule fixed by the company.

The new system saves the railway the trouble of transporting and storing each consigner's cargo separately.

The railway company, in pursuit of its policy of making Dairen the finest port in the Orient, has been constantly at work improving it. Plans are already drawn up for its further extension to take care of the trade that was increasing by leaps and bounds up until the depression set in and which may be expected to increase in the same manner when business recovers. Steamers representing all nationalities entering the port of Dairen during 1920 numbered 2,942, with a total tonnage of 4,864,094 tons. As many as 30 steamers, with an aggregate tonnage of 71,800 tons have been taken care of at the same time.

Gems Rich And Rare Recovered From Sacred Edifices And Shrines

Moscow, July 20.—The authorities have published a partial return of the amount of precious stones and metals garnered in as the result of the seizure of the property of the churches. It reads like a tale of the Arabian Nights. Of gold, 21½ poods, of silver 18 poods, of alloys containing some proportion of precious metals, 78 poods; most astonishing of all of pearls 3 poods have been collected in the thirty provinces for which particulars are available. They include the Governments of Moscow, Petrograd, Kieff, Kasan and Nijni Novgorod.

The exact number and appreciation of the diamonds is not published yet, but we are told that the number of precious stones of value is 43,711. These include diamonds, rubies, sapphires and emeralds, topazes, amethysts, garnets and the other semi-precious stones are contemptuously dismissed as "sackfuls."

Besides those riches that have apparently been already separated, unset and classified there are ancient and priceless works of the goldsmith's art, set with gems of great value that are to escape the melting pot and be kept in the State museums. A special commission of experts has been appointed to take in hand the valuation of these masterpieces.

The description of some of the gems would make the mouth of any respectable merchant in Hatton Gardens water. Several diamonds of 40 carats and over are mentioned, the prize of the collection being a superb stone of 47 carats. Pink and blue, yellow and black diamonds have a long paragraph to themselves. There is a touch of fairy tale about the description of a pearl of wonderful luster "the size of a pigeon's egg."

As the intention is to sell these riches abroad the suspicion that the compilers of the list are drawing the long bow is a natural one. In this instance, however, the Bolsheviks have probably no occasion to write fiction. It was well known that some of the Russian churches possessed stones of almost unequalled beauty and rarity.

From a private source I know that the Cathedral of St. Isaac in Petrograd alone nearly yielded 4 poods of pure gold. Of all the provinces passed in review so far that of Moscow proved the richest treasure ground. Though that of Petrograd ran it close the poorest booty was obtained from the Volga regions. Whether because the local churches were really poorer there or because the priests succeeded in hiding their more precious possessions is not clear.

Paris, London and Amsterdam are the places where the bulk of the stones will be offered, though some of the more distinctive and rare pieces will be reserved for a special attack on American millionaires. It is an article of faith with people here that American millionaires have a mania for presenting their wives with entire collections of historic gems. Some of the booty has already left Russia; the delegates to The Hague took a certain amount with them for disposal.

Swinehart Bank Account In New U. S. Court Tangle

Following upon the recent criminal hearing in the United States Court for China that was filed by Mr. Dudley E. Swinehart against Mr. Percy B. Moore who was acquitted of charges of undue intimacy with Mrs. Swinehart, details of the finances of the Swinehearts through the years they lived together were reviewed before Judge Lobingier yesterday in a new case in which Mr. and Mrs. Swinehart and Mr. Moore again are principals.

In the present action Mr. Swinehart is suing Mrs. Swinehart, Mr. Moore and a lingerie company, the two last named formed called Moson, Hart and Co. The suit is based upon a claim for Gold $4,863, held by the Asia Banking Corporation, which Swinehart asserts is his and was taken over by his wife in the launching of the lingerie enterprise without his consent. Mr. F. J. Schuhl, who appeared for Mr. Moore in the preceding action is attorney for the defendants in the present suit and Mr. P. F. Faison, of Williams, Franklin and Faison, who was Mr. Swinehart's attorney in the first case is continuing to act for him.

SWINEHART TESTIFIES

Much of the testimony that was presented at the criminal hearing was reviewed by Mr. Swinehart yesterday morning when he took the stand.

Under Mr. Faison's questioning Mr. Swinehart detailed his moving about the world from place to place as a civil engineer including the United States, Panama, Peru Bolivia and China. Mr. F. J. Schuhl, representing Mrs. Swinehart, objected to the detail but Judge Lobingier allowed the questioning to proceed when Mr. Faison said he wished to show that Mr. Swinehart was a resident of the State of Colorado, evidently a key to the plaintiff's argument against the defense's contention that the money involved is community property.

Mr. Swinehart gave new testimony concerning the family finances when he said that Mrs. Swinehart, who was running a dancing school in Kalamazoo, Michigan, at the time of their marriage, was in debt and that he advanced her $200 before the marriage. His first action after their marriage, he said, was to get her gold watch out of pawn.

Mr. Swinehart also said that his wife had taken some of his money to pass through her banking account when she offered her dancing studio for sale in an effort to make it appear that she was doing a better business than she actually was at the time.

WENT TO PERU

A short time after their marriage, he testified, they went to Peru and stayed two years. Mrs. Swinehart returned first, going to San Pedro and he went up the East Coast to New York, later going to California. At that time, he said, he advanced her $2,000 gold in a draft, $200 gold in cash, and a first class ticket. At San Diego he had $5,100 gold in the United States Bank of San Diego, he said.

Again they moved to Georgia, he testified, and it was while they were there that, expecting to be sent to Bolivia on short notice, he wrote the San Diego bank instructing them to turn his bank account over to Mrs. Swinehart The action, he said, was taken because he wished to leave Mrs. Swinehart well provided for in case he would be unable to send money regularly from South America.

REVIEWS EVENTS HERE

Continuing his testimony Mr. Swinehart reviewed in details the events that followed after he and his wife had arrived in Shanghai in September of 1921 when they went to live at 21 Range Road where they met Mr. Moore and in telling of their subsequent movements, first to a house in Frenchtown to which Moore accompanied them and then to quarters in the Ben Building, he again made charges against Mr. Moore and Mrs. Swinehart. He then referred to the manner in which the gold account he had had in San Diego and had transferred to his wife's credit had been transferred to the Asia Bank here, still in her name, and charged she had taken possession of the funds without authorisation with the purpose of employing them in the lingerie business.

At the conclusion of Mr. Swinehart's testimony Mr. Schuhl presented a motion for a non-suit in the case, but was overruled and the defense opened. Mr. Moore who began his testimony at the morning session of court resumed the stand in the afternoon. His testimony was devoted largely to the details of the manner in which the lingerie business was launched and its methods of operation.

TELLS OF BUSINESS

Mr. Moore said that he was doing export and import business and that the first time he knew that Mr. and Mrs. Swinehart were quarrelling about money matters was when Attorney Faison sent him a letter asking for the return of the money, which had been used in financing the Moson, Hart and Co. He also stated that he did not conspire with Mrs. Swinehart or with anybody to defraud Mr. Swinehart.

Cross-examined by Mr. Faison, witness said that he was the President and Manager of Moson, Hart and Co. and Mrs. Swinehart was Treasurer and Designer. The Company was incorporated for $25,000 Mex. and it was agreed that Mrs. Swinehart should put in $4,000 gold and he also $4,000 gold. Mrs. Swinehart put in her share which amounted to more or less $10,000 Mex. money, but his share was not yet paid. There was, however, the understanding that he could pay his share for services rendered in going back to America to get orders while at the same time paying his expenses with the Company's money. Witness hoped to pay the rest of his share sometime in the future when he could get the money.

MRS. SWINEHART ON STAND

Following Mr. Moore on the stand Mrs. Swinehart presented a number of denials of assertions Mr. Swinehart had made and in particular she contended that the money that had been transferred to her by her husband when it was on deposit at San Diego and later had been transferred to Shanghai was mutual fund and was not Mr. Swinehart's exclusive property. She said the amount of the fund was not as Mr. Swinehart stated, G. $4,863, but G. $4,369. She said she had every right to employ the funds in the lingerie business as outlined.

In the course of the hearing Mr. Faison made several efforts to introduce written testimony by M. de La Prade, who had acted a judge of the French Mixed Court when a former case involving the Swinehearts had been on trial. Mr. Faison said he wished to have statements ascribed to Mrs. Swinehart in the French Mixed Court included in the record of the present case. It was set forth that an angle of French law forbids French justices to testify in other courts, and therefore Mr. Faison sought to introduce a written statement, a move that was contested by Mr. Schuhl. Mr. Faison intimated before the hearing adjourned yesterday that M. de La Prade may consent to testify in the case and asked that a formal subpoena be issued addressed to him.

The trial is to be resumed this morning.

BLIND DRIVER IS FORBIDDEN TO RUN MOTOR CAR

London, July 19.—The police have forbidden a Yorkshire tradesman to drive a motor car, but only because he is blind.

This sightless man is something of a prodigy. He can tell, to an inch almost, where he is in Leeds or Harrogate, or on the road between those towns. But since the days of Blind Jack of Knaresborough, the greatest roadmaker of the north, blind Yorkshiremen have seemed to delight in proving the loss of sight to be little handicap.

Leeds long had its blind cabinetmaker, specimens of whose work found their way into foreign courts as well as English mansions. One of the most famous botanists of the day, again a Leedsman, is blind. Selby has a blind shopkeeper who manages his own business, easily recognising the different articles, and who puts in his spare time tramping the country round about and preaching. One of the most consistent supporters of Huddersfield Town Football Club last season was a blind man, who went to every match, and on occasion supplied to a newspaper reports of the game which were wonderfully accurate, including details that spectators who could see had not particularly noted.

In many districts there are blind men who daily journey several miles along the roads between their homes and places of work. Darkness and fog have no terrors for them. The one thing that can upset their equanimity is a fall of snow, for snow deadens all sounds and leaves them as much at sea as a thick fog does those people who rely on their eyes.

Health Department Tells How To Rid Premises Of Roaches And Other Bugs

In response to numerous complaints sent in to the Public Health Department of the presence in houses of insects of various kinds such as ants, cockroaches and bugs that may be a menace to health, the Department has issued an announcement dealing with these pests and suggesting means of eliminating them.

ANTS

The little red ant, or Pharaoh's ant, is the most troublesome of the house varieties, and most difficult to get rid of.

From the nest—usually in a warm spot near the kitchen stove—they will forage over the whole house.

They may be seen in long columns following an odorous trail left by preceding ants between food and nest.

They are not known to convey disease germs, but like other insects feeding on our foodstuffs may mechanically carry such germs on their feet and bodies.

Their nests are often inaccessible, but may sometimes be found by following the columns of "workers" to their point of disappearance and injecting kerosene or gasoline into the opening by means of an oil-can or small syringe.

Guard against fire, for these fluids are inflammable.

If unable to destroy the nest, protect foodsafes and ice-chests from invasion by standing the legs in receptacles containing coal-tar preparations as Cyllin or Jeyes fluid.

COCKROACHES

Cockroaches love warmth and moisture and live in cracks and crannies in the kitchen, or near hot water or steam pipes. They also love darkness, perhaps because their deeds are evil, but also because the direct effect of light is disagreeable.

They are loathsome creatures of filthy habits. From their abdominal glands they secrete a foul smelling fluid which they smear over everything they touch; they also spread their excrement over foodstuffs on which they crawl and feed.

Like the fly they will feed on any filth as sputum and excrement, and thus may carry the germ of tuberculosis, pneumonia, typhoid, cholera, dysentery, etc.

Their eggs are developed in capsules attached to the abdomen of the female, until the young are ready to emerge. The young moult several times and take from six months to a year to reach maturity. They may hibernate during the winter, and become active again in the spring.

To destroy them, the first principle, apart from keeping food and refuse out of their reach, is to fill up all cracks and crannies round kitchen and pantry; or treat these with strong coal tar preparations, or with 5 percent formalin solution.

Powdered borax or sulphur drives them away and may even poison some.

FLEAS

There are 500 varieties, but those which infest man are mainly the human, the dog, the cat, the chicken and the rat flea.

These prefer their own host, but in an emergency unhesitatingly bite other animals.

Fleas transmit plague from rats to man.

The flea lays her eggs, usually on the body of an animal: they fall on the floor and hatch out under favorable conditions in about a fortnight. The white, active larva, after a varying period of time, up to several months, spins a cocoon in which it pupates—the young flea may emerge from the cocoon in a few days—or perhaps not for more than a year.

If fleas infect a house, first search the dogs or cats living there, and if necessary thoroughly soak their hair with some such solution as the following.—dissolve one ounce of common soap in one quart of boiling water; add one pint of kerosene, mix thoroughly, and add sufficient warm water to make about two gallons.

To destroy fleas on the floor, remove carpets, sweep up and burn all dust, and saturate the floor with the above kerosene emulsion.

BUGS

These unpleasant insects have been accused of carrying the infection of tubercle, leprosy, anthrax, plague, relapsing and typhoid fever, but proofs are wanting. They are hardy creatures and can live a year without food or drink.

They hide in any kind of crevice and at night come out, like ancient Pistol "the very blood to suck."

The white, oval, fluded eggs are laid in clumps in cracks and crevices anywhere, and in seams of mattresses.

Fill in all cracks and crevices if possible, or treat with strong Cyllin or Jeyes fluid. Kerosene is an efficient poison. Sulphur fumigation of rooms, if properly done, will destroy the insects but not the eggs. Five pounds of sulphur, or the equivalent in sulphur candles, should be burned for each 1,000 cubic feet of room space. First paste strips of paper over cracks round windows, doors, etc. (except the entrance door), and seal up the chimney.

Break up the sulphur into small pieces, and put into an iron pot capable of holding twice the amount; stand the iron pot on a brick in a pan of water about three inches deep and set in the middle of the room. Pour a tablespoonful of alcohol over the sulphur and set alight; close the entrance door and seal up from outside.

Leave for ten hours. The process may need to be repeated in ten days time to kill any bugs that may have hatched from remaining eggs.

Ebert Proclaims 'Deutschland Ueber Alles' As A Good Republican National Anthem

Berlin, Aug. 12.—"Deutschland Uber Alles" was the dominate note of yesterday's celebration of the third anniversary of the ratification of the German Republican Constitution. It took many Berliners back to the old Imperial days when, a little before noon, President Ebert and Chancellor Wirth reviewed a special Reichswehr company drawn up at the Bismarck monument in front of the Reichstag Building, while a Reichswehr band blared "Deutschland Uber Alles."

But it was not a sudden outburst of reactionary enthusiasm with intent to mar the republican show. President Ebert had discovered that the old Imperial hymn was a perfectly good republican song and that its author, Hoffmann von Fallersleben, had been a pioneer of German republicanism and had been persecuted by the reactionary autocracy of his time. So Ebert and the other coalition leaders who staged the celebration decided to rescue it from the maws of nationalists, militarists, monarchists, and reactionaries generally who had appropriated it for purely partisan purposes, and give it back to the German people as the national anthem of the Republic—something of which Germany had not yet become formally possessed.

The President himself gave the signal for playing and singing "Deutschland Uber Alles" ad libitum throughout republican Germany by specifically making the famous refrain the keynote of his proclamation to the German people, pointedly referring to its author as a great patriot, and quoting a useful motto for republican Germany the line in the third stanza: "Unity and right and freedom."

SUPREME COURT ASKED TO SETTLE CITIZEN'S 'COLOR'

Japanese In Honolulu Insists On Full Papers As A 'White Man'

Honolulu, Hawaii, July 15.—The Supreme Court of the United States is to be called upon to determine a man's "color." This unique point has arisen in the claim of Takao Ozawa, an alien Japanese in the employ of a coal firm, to American citizenship.

Ozawa contends that he is entitled to the rights of American citizenship, not only upon the ground that he has sought to mould his life along strictly American lines and in accordance with the best American customs and ideals, but that he is "white."

The Ozawa case, it is understood, will be argued the early part of October.

Ozawa's fight for American citizenship represents a struggle in which the odds against him are overwhelming. He lost out in both the Honolulu Federal Court and in the Circuit Court of the ninth circuit at San Francisco, to which he appealed from the local decision.

Here is the striking manner in which Ozawa has attempted to prove that he is "white."

In the first place, he has set up the unusual claim that the Japanese were originally of the white race. He has traced the history of Japan for some thousands of years, carrying it back to the Ainu tribe, and no less a person than James M. Beck, Solicitor General of the United States, has expressed the belief that that particular part of the Japanese race has the distinct mark of the Caucasian.

If Ozawa should succeed in proving his point, and should the Supreme Court decide the case in his favor, the decision would undoubtedly let down the bars to the naturalisation of large numbers of Japanese now in the United States and of others who would eventually go to that country. In Hawaii the effect of such a decision would be more marked than in any other part of the nation, in view of the fact that already there are more than 200,000 Japanese in these islands.

Ozawa came to Honolulu when a young man. He is well educated, speaks English fluently and holds a position of responsibility with one of the territory's leading firms. His application for citizenship, filed in the local court some years ago, was looked upon as a "test" case. It was heard, and the decision of the court was adverse to the petitioner. Ozawa, however, was not to be thus put off. He carried his case to the Appeals Court at San Francisco, but that court upheld the Honolulu decision.

Recently it was reported that several attorneys of national fame had been engaged to argue the case for Ozawa before the Supreme Court.

Baden Is Taxing Foreign Visitors

Geneva, July 19.—According to the Basle National Zeitung, the authorities in Baden have adopted fresh regulations regarding the stay of foreigners. They are now subjected to strict supervision, and are obliged not only to announce their arrival but to state the length of their intended stay, in accordance with which taxes are imposed on the following scale:

Subjects of the United States, Mexico, China, England, Rumania, Holland, Japan and the South American States, up to seven days, 750 marks; from seven days to four weeks, 1,200 marks; over four weeks 2,000 marks.

Subjects of Switzerland, France, Belgium, Spain, Denmark, Sweden Norway and Poland for similar periods are taxed 300, 600 and 1,000 marks; of Russia, Italy and the Balkan States (except Rumania), Finland, Czecho-Slovakia and Huugary 100, 200 and 400 marks, and so on.

German Actors Starve As Theaters Are Shut

Berlin, Aug. 12.—Unusually hard times have fallen upon the stage world of Germany. The economic difficulties which have been distressing theatrical managers ever since the revolution have thrown hundreds of actors and actresses out of employment and at the same time closed many theaters.

Today numerous directors are waiting until almost curtain time for the winter season before entering into contracts for the numbers of their casts. The artists themselves have been so hard pressed for means of gaining a livelihood that they have been turning to other work. In one town in the occupied territory an actor, who once played leading hero parts, has taken up the pick of a coal miner, rather than stoop to a minor part on the stage, or accept a salary which would be low compared with a miner's wages. This instance is said to be typical.

In the days before the war there were more than two dozen flourishing theatrical agencies in Berlin. The coming of the revolution marked the introduction of government labor exchanges jointly conducted by representatives of employers and employees. Private agencies were given a ten years' lease of life in which to recuperate losses entailed through government competition. Most of them have closed, however, leaving Berlin today with only four large actors' agencies.

The private bureaus demanded 5 percent commission, which was equally shared by employer and employee. While the government at first charged nothing as commission, it now asks 3 percent.

Lately managers, directors and exchanges have been flooded with applications for jobs. Many managers require artists to take as many as three different characters in the same play. Stage contracts which formerly ran from three to five years at present are being made for only one year, and even contracts for a year are rare.

GERMAN FORTS AT METZ PUZZLE FRENCH OFFICIALS

Uncertain What To Do, But May Preserve Them As Public Monuments

Paris, July 29.—Two questions of important interest to future Generals have come up for settlement here recently, both of them having arisen from the war. The first is, What use is to be made of the double circle of forts the Germans constructed around Metz during the forty years of occupation? And the second, a tentative solution of which has been proposed, is: How shall the scene of the armistice meeting in a forest clearing on November 11, 1918, be marked?

In the case of the Metz fortifications the authorities are trying to find a utilitarian solution. At least half of the forts cannot be adapted to anything save patriotic shrines, as they were designed for the protection of Metz from attacks from the West, and by a strange turn of fate were occupied intact after the armistice, with all their guns and machinery, without the slightest combat.

It is now proposed to class these forts as public monuments and charge a small admission fee, to show the world the great stage of perfection attained by Germany, even in methods of defense, when it was planning the world war. It has been suggested that the Eastern advance forts be destroyed, as they cannot be considered useful in consideration of modern weapons. But the sentimental interest of the Lorrainers is likely to prevent this and the obsolete guns may remain for generations to remind their beyond the Rhine neighbors that the way to the West is forever closed to them.

Tens of thousands of tourists this year undoubtedly passed the armistice siding in the forest without noticing a small placard by the roadside, put up by a tourist agency to point out the spot where history was made. Now a society of ex-combatants is organising a fund for placing a solid granite dais midway between the two railway lines, where the allied and German Generals net.

Swam 175 Miles In Three Months

London, July 15.—At Lowestoff on the Suffolk coast near Yarmouth, experiments are being carried out to discover how far and in what directions fish travel, times of migration, and speed of growth.

Specimen fish are caught and measured. Weedy and sickly fish are thrown out. The best specimens are set free and a record is kept of the places where they are released. The fish are marked with two ebonite discs joined by a short silver wire. Flat fish are marked near the side fin and round fish, like cod, on the back fin or in a flap of loose skin at the gills.

Much valuable information is obtained when these "buttoned" fish are recaught. It was found that a 15-inch plaiced travelled 175 miles—from the east coast to the English Channel—in three months. Another liberated at Mablethorpe, Lincolnshire, made a journey of 210 miles to St. Andrew's Bay in eight months. Small laice taken from the Danish and Dutch banks were liberated on the Dogger and it was found that they grew more than three times as fast as those on the inshore grounds.

Chinese Actors In London Object To Films, Cause Ruckus

(Reuter's Special Service)

London, Sept. 12.—The performance of Mr. Somerset Maughan's play, East of Suez, was nearly prevented the other night by an objection on the part of the Chinese actors to being filmed.

Shortly after the curtain rose a deputation of Chinese told the management that they were unable to appear. Everybody was thunderstruck as apparently they were quite happy.

They explained that they detected the cinematographer filming the play during a special rehearsal for the purpose of photographing the company. They said that it was beneath their dignity to be screened, as a film without the spoken word would give a misleading impression of the play and show their race in a bad light.

They only consented to appear when the offending parts of the film were destroyed in their presence. This ended the crisis.

Lloyd George To Make League Speech

(Reuter's Service)

London, Sept. 12.—Mr. Lloyd George is expected to leave London on September 20 to attend the Assembly of the League of Nations. Great interest in attached to his visit as he is expected to make an important pronouncement on the general economic situation.

Signor Schanzer and M. Viviani are also expected to attend the Assembly.

Textile Traders Report Revival

(Reuter's Service)

London, Sept. 12.—A striking proof of the revival of the export wool textile trade is adduced by the President of the Bradford Chamber of Commerce, who says that the demand for exporting certificates from the Chamber for the present year up to August 31 was double the demand in the whole of 1921.

Singapore Rubber Auctions

Singapore, August 30, 1922

London has remained unchanged during the week, until this morning, when 6¾d. was reported for spot, which is ⅛d. down. New York has also been unchanged and dull. The local market has shown signs of weakening; there is, however, still a fair inquiry although at slightly lower figures.

757 tons were put up for sale at today's auction, 575 tons offered and 446 tons sold.

Prices are almost unchanged on the week; the demand was on an average fairly good, but the sales proceeded in a rather dull tone.

Awarded Singapore Standard Ribbed Smoked Sheet sold at last week's price, viz: 23¾ cents; large quantities, however, were withdrawn owing to the small amount of interest shown in this grade.

Sheet equal to Standard found more interest with buyers.

Off Quality parcels maintained a fair amount of interest.

Awarded Singapore Standard 1st Latex Crepe sold at 24 cents; one lot even fetched 24¼ cents.

This grade and Crepe equal to Standard were wanted, and realised these good prices on account of "shorts" covering.

Off Color Latex was also in demand.

Brown, Dark and Barky Crepes were easy of sale at prices slightly below those of last week.

Spot bar silver was up ⅛d in London yesterday and forward bar silver unchanged. The New York price advanced to 69⅞ cents and the London-New York cross rate declined to 445.

The only changes in our official quotations here today were a rise in the Franc rate to 1005 and in the Yen rate to 63. Our market in the early part of the morning was steady but eased off later and closed on the easy side.

At the opening there were sellers of Sterling at 3-5 9-16 September, 3-5⅝ October and 3-5 11-16 forward. The market steadied up somewhat and business was done at 1-16d higher than these rates. However, at the close there were buyers rather than sellers at these rates.

Business in Gold Dollars was done at 77¼ September, 77⅜ October and 77½ for forward delivery. At the close, however, there were more buyers than sellers at these rates.

There was a strong demand for Yen today, quite a large business being done at 62½ for October delivery and 62 7-16 for forward. However, at the close there were buyers at 62 11-16 October and 62⅝ for forward delivery.

Speculators again today were buyers of most currencies. Banks were moderate sellers for forward delivery and disinclined to sell for near delivery.

Sterling bills were done today at 3-6⅜. Gold Dollar bills at 78¾ and Franc bills at 1045. India bought silver in London yesterday and the market closed steady.

New York report their market as a shade easier with more sellers than buyers at the official rate.

League Assembly Discusses Opium

(Reuter's Service)

Geneva, Sept. 11.—Consideration of the opium traffic was resumed by the Fifth Commission of the Assembly of the League of Nations today. Lord Chelmsford called attention to the marked diminution in the production of harmful drugs and gave interesting figures dealing with the production of opium in India.

It was pointed out that joint struggle against the drug traffic was too recently initiated for any great success to be recorded and that grave difficulties were encountered in obtaining the exact figures.

Sir Arthur Steel-Maitland urged that strict control should be exercised of the manufacture of opium and morphia which should be based entirely on medical requirements.

Lord Chelmsford suggested that the delegates should press their Governments to adopt the system of import and export certificates method of dealing with the drug traffic which up to the present had been adopted by only 20 out of 51 members of the League.

Says Gt. Britain Agreed To Pact

(Reuter's Service)

London, Sept. 12.—Mr. Leslie Urquhart, interviewed by Reuter, said that the British Government had agreed to the signature of the agreement between the Russo-Asiatic Consolidated Company and the Soviet Government for a 99 years lease of the Company's former properties in the Urals and Siberia.

Tragic Scenes At Hammonia Sinking

(Reuter's Service)

London, Sept. 12.—"The worst scenes in my experience," said Captain Day of the liner, Kinfauns Castle, whose long record at sea includes the saving of four ship's crews, on his arrival at Southampton from Capetown this morning with the survivors of the Hammonia on board.

The captain estimated that 50 to 60 lives were lost before the Kinfauns Castle arrived on the scene. He saw several dead bodies floating on the water. Captain Day said that he would never forget the dreadful scenes during the eight hours that the Kinfauns Castle was standing by.

The majority of passengers were Spanish workers with their families and on this account an accurate list of the missing is difficult to obtain.

Captain Day said that at ten in the morning he received the S. O. S. There was a strong north-easterly gale and a heavy sea. He altered his course and rescued the Hammonia at noon.

He found her on her side and sinking and round her were many overturned boats and rafts with people clinging to them. The Kinfauns Castle launched six lifeboats, which were very busy at rescue work throughout the afternoon under the most difficult conditions.

Meanwhile the steamers, Euclid, Soldier Prince and City of Valencia, arrived and took part in the rescue. The last boat from the Kinfauns Castle left the [illegible] at 6.20 in the evening with the German captain and officers. Six minutes later the Hammonia foundered.

The Captain of the Hammonia, interviewed, said that he was unable to account for the disaster. He found that water was coming in and decided to send out an S. O. S. in view of the weather. He said that everybody on board was accounted for except 15 persons.

The Soldier Prince arrived at Gibraltar today where she landed forty passengers and twenty-one of the crew of the Hammonia. There were no British subjects among the party.

G.O.P. Wins In Maine By Narrow Margin

(Reuter's Service)

Portland, Sept. 12. — The elections in the State of Maine which are traditionally regarded as a barometer of the voting in the other States, resulted in the re-election of the Republicans, Senator Hale and Governor Baxter and four Republican members of the House of Representatives, but the majorities are decidedly below those of the Republican candidates in 1920. The Democratic vote is 5,000 above that of 1920 while the Republican vote has decreased by 22,000.

Belgium Demands Gold Guarantees

(Reuter's Service)

Brussels, Sept. 12.—Following the breakdown of the Belgo-German negotiations of Berlin the Belgian Foreign Minister has notified the German Charge d'Affaires that the Government has decided to claim that Germany shall guarantee the Treasury bonds for the September and October reparation instalments by a gold deposit, lodged in a bank acceptable to Belgium.

Quits High Court To Boost League

(China Press Service)

Washington, Sept. 11.—Justice John H. Clarke of the United States Supreme Court, who resigned a few days ago, will campaign in behalf of the League of Nations, according to an announcement made here today.

Rumors that Justice Clarke had such a campaign in mind were broadcast at the time of his resignation. No appointment has been made by President Harding to fill the vacancy.

Russ Grand Duke To Wed Modiste

(China Press Service)

Paris, Sept. 12.—Grand Duke Dimitri Pavlovitch of Russia has announced his engagement to Mme. Chanel, Parisian modiste and inventor of the jersey tailor-made suits, which had such a rage that they have made their inventor rich.

The grand duke has been an exile from Russia since the soviets have been running things there, and has renounced his claims in favor of Grand Duke Cyril Vladimirovitch, who in consequence has been proclaimed "Guardian of the Russian Throne." The young grand duke has no regrets for his renunciation of his high sounding title, because although it sounds distinguished, there are an incalculable number of persons needing shaves standing between the throne and its guardian.

The grand duke himself goes clean shaven, partly from personal preference and partly as a protest against the hairy wild men who are administering what used to belong to the grand duke. He is known in Paris as an unassuming, agreeable chap who has carried into his new station no arrogance such as was permissible to the grand dukes. His friends say they much prefer to see him as the successful husband of a successful dressmaker, rather than as a grand duke out of a job at "grand-dukeing."

Shantung Residents Protest At Peking

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, September 12.—A group of about 100 members of the Shantung Guild demonstrated this afternoon outside the gates of the Presidency with the object of expressing discontent at the progress of the Shantung negotiations and demanding the unconditional restoration of Weihaiwei.

Peking, September 12.—Dr. C. T. Wang has left for Shantung.

Beerenbrouck Heads New Dutch Cabinet

(Reuter's Service)

The Hague, Sept. 12.—Jonkheer C. J. M. Ruys de Beerenbrouck has formed a new Cabinet, as follow:—

Jonkheer H. A. Van Karnebeek ..... Foreign Affairs.

M. Westerveld ..... Navy.

M. J. J. C. Van Dijk .. War.

M. S. de Graaff .... Colonies.

M. Van Swaay .. Waterstaat.

There are only two new men in the reconstructed clerical cabinet, namely M. Westerveld and van Swaay. Negotiations have been proceeding since the elections in July, which increased the Right Coalition's majority in the Second Chamber to 20.

Giesel Co. Denies Bad Hootch Traffic

Giesel and Company have made a denial that they are the owners of the godowns in which police are alleged to have seized stocks of spurious liquor on last Friday, and also deny that any spurious liquor was found on any premises owned or occupied by their firm.

The name of the firm appeared in connection with a story in Saturday's issue in which a police report of a police raid on the godowns appeared.

TIRED-OUT WOMEN.

What they Need to Restore Vitality.

The woman who feels tired out, who aches all over when she rises in the morning, who feels depressed most of her time, needs just the help that Dr. Williams' pink pills can give her—new rich blood, and stronger nerves.

The number of disorders caused by thin blood is amazing, and most women are careless about the condition of their blood. Their nerves are quickly affected, and they become irritable; they worry over trifles, and do not obtain refreshing sleep. There may be stomach trouble and headaches. This is the condition that calls for Dr. Williams' pink pills, the blood-making and nerve-restoring tonic.

Give Dr. Williams' pink pills a trial, and the first sign of new life will soon be noticed by your increased appetite. Your blood becomes enriched, it feeds and soothes the irritated nerves, sleep becomes sounder and more refreshing, your worries diminish and your work seems lighter.

If you suffer from any of the above symptoms begin to get well by starting Dr. Williams' pink pills now. Of dealers; or direct from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co. 96 Szechuen Road, Shanghai, at $1.50 per bottle; $8.00 for 6 bottles, post free. For men and women too.

Why a Tile Roof Leaks

The heat of summer causes the tile to expand while the cold of winter causes it to contract. Since tile is a fragile material, it cannot stand the repeated expansions and contractions without cracking.

The water absorbed in its pores evaporates or freezes and then expands which causes the tile to break up quickly.

For these reasons tile roofs can never last as long as roofs. Because Certain-teed contracts and expands with temperature changes and does not absorb water, it makes an absolutely weather-proof roof under all sorts of conditions.

Chinese house-owners, too, are using Certain-teed instead of the old-style leaky tile roof.

WEATHER

The typhoon, having passed near Chinkiang, will continue in the direction of Shantung, inclining probably towards North-North-East. Weather improving in Shanghai. Stormy weather on the Yellow Sea. Gales in Shantung. The depression of the Pacific appears to enclose two centers: the one travelling between Guam and the Bonin, the other still threatening Formosa and Luzon.

France Today

(The following notes are from the notebook of Herbert Bayard Swope, Executive Editor of The New York World, who has just returned from Europe. His notes on conditions in Germany were published yesterday. His notes on England will appear tomorrow. Besides winning the Pulitzer Prize for meritorious newspaper work in 1917, Mr. Swope was associate Chairman of the War Industries Board and Chairman of the American Committee on Publicity at the Peace Conference.)

THE present policy of the French Government is to thrust France into conflict with natural laws. Her population decreases while that of Germany increases. It may be that the realisation of that fact has brought about the current philosophy of desperation.

Taxation in France is farcical as compared with that of Britain or America.

Joseph Caillaux, once discredited but now laying his plans for a return to power, is one of the very few French statesmen who realise the importance of a definite and continuous fiscal policy. Not a few among the intellectuals of France expect to see Caillaux return to the helm. The suggestion of this possibility is often met with either bitter resentment or cynical acquiescence. Many say they would rather kill Caillaux with their own hands than see him Premier. Others regard him as France's only savior. This statement is made after careful inquiry and will be greeted with division, but the prophecy is ventured that within three years Caillaux will be either Prime Minister or controlling the appointment to that office.

The supporters of Poincare are beginning to realise that France cannot discharge her world duties with an eye singly on France's interests—they are beginning to realise the Give and Take Gospel. Just before I left Paris I heard a distinguished adherent of the Prime Minister insist that it was unjust to call Poincare a Nationalist.

The Poincare Government is beginning to learn that it makes a difference whose ox is gored. Poincare himself said that it was a matter of regret that the question of the cancellation of the Allied debt to America, which was entirely economic, could not be left to a commission of economists to settle. In reply, it was pointed out to him that many in America felt the same way about the matter of reparations; that it, in the opinion of Poincare, it was an evil thing that the cancellation should be made the football of politics, it was equally evil in the minds of American onlookers that the reparations should be subjected to the same ordeal.

Not much may be expected of the present Chamber. With certain exceptions it is on all fours, in its lack of merit, with the British House of Commons and the American Congress, and rather the worst of the three.

Locheur, reputed to be the richest man in France, Minister of Munitions and of Reconstruction under Clemenceau, but now merely a Deputy, is convinced his chances to be Premier are good.

"Doesn't your wealth stand in the way of your political preferment?" he was asked. "Not a bit," he responded. "In France wealth is by no means a barrier to political success." Certain political and journalistic conditions in France would seem to substantiate this.

French solvency is so intermixed with German reparations that it is generally agreed a showdown must be avoided at all costs, yet showdown there must be sooner or later. Those who realise this are the ones who believe that Caillaux has a chance to come back.

French external obligations will be paid in full. What will happen to certain of her internal commitments is another story. A spirit of fatalism is springing up in the country. The French work hard to keep their minds off the morrow. In spite of the fulminations of certain politicians, it is not difficult to discover that the spirit of the people, by and large, is bitterly opposed to war and that any leader who attempts to precipitate the nation into conflict will have a bitter accounting to face.

Little whispers here, little bits of rumors there, gossip, knowing winks, cunning leers, all draw their inspiration from a growing belief that a vast scandal may yet be uncovered in the reconstruction expenditures of France made in the devastated regions. The amount paid out thus far approximates ninety-three billion francs, which is, roughly, about eight billions of dollars, and expenditures are still continuing unabated. No matter what request is made by the Minister of the Liberated Regions, the Chamber of Deputies assents at once, on the score of patriotism. It is unfashionable and almost dangerous to oppose a request.

The Germans occupied about 15,000 square miles, or something less than 6 percent of the total French territory. Within that area there lived about 4,600,000 people, or a little more than 11 percent of France's population in 1914. It is estimated that about one-half of the reconstruction work has been finished. If we assume two-thirds done and one-third remaining to be completed, the total cost will be twelve billion dollars.

The national wealth of France was estimated, by competent economists, at from fifty to sixty-five million dollars before the war. This was the mean of the computations made by Hessy, Helferich and Steinman-Bucher. The usual factors were included, such as goods movable and immovable, including crops, real property, mines underground, goods and valuables in transit, public properties and investments abroad. If totality of destruction took place in the devastated regions (which was not wholly the case) and the cost or damages placed at twelve billions of dollars, and if we place the national wealth of France at sixty-five billions, we find that one-ninth of the population, living in one-sixteenth of the area, supplied one-fifth of the entire national wealth. The disparity of these figures is obvious.

Dr. Walter Rathenau told me, in the presence of the American Ambassador to Germany, just a few days before the German statesman was killed, that he himself (of course, with the proper financial backing) would undertake to restore all of the devastated regions of France for two and one-half billions of dollars.

Without seeking to anticipate a statement from an internationally known American, who is now engaged in conducting an inquiry along these lines, it can be said he is convinced there has been gross mismanagement in the expenditure of moneys for the rehabitation of the destroyed area. This condition may be one of the rocks on which Poincare's ship may yet founder.

America and the Americans should be the last to cavil at French politics today, for much of the condition one finds was brought on by American dereliction. France trusted us and we failed her: France sought our moral support and we denied it. We worship the fetish of "America for Americans," and in our self-glorification forgot what America owed the rest of the world and, especially, what she owed France, to whom she had committed herself.

Whatever may be the finding of an impersonal and objective inquiry into German militarism there is no doubt that it is a real and living menace in the eyes of the average Frenchman, and that menace could have been exercised by a commitment to French support in the event of an unjustified aggression or, perhaps, even better, by a real and potent League of Nations, but we chose to withdraw from the first and emasculate the second. If the war had a lesson to teach it was that America could not remain indifferent to any threat against the peace of the world no matter how remote that threat might seem to be. Yet, in the face of this demonstrated theorem, we bury our head in the sand and pretend that the situation in Europe (which we have been so largely instrumental in bringing about) is of no concern to us.

We talk of American isolation, when our uttermost and most sincere efforts to preserve that isolation only succeeded in compelling us to recruit for war more than 4,000,000 men and send more than 2,000,000 abroad. We talk of American isolation with many of our blood nearly 100,000 American soldiers died in ties springing from the other side. We talk of American isolation, with more than $15,000,000,000 tied up in Europe—$10,000,000,000 in the form of Allied debts, $1,500,000,000 in the form of foreign loans floated here, and $2,500,000,000 in the form of private investments and commercial credits in and to European peoples.

We talk of American isolation, with hundreds of thousands of Americans going abroad every year. Where our interests are—be they sentimental or financial—our politics cannot fail to follow.

As in Germany, one sees only women at work in the fields of France.

Living in France is far higher than in Germany This is especially true in Paris—the hotels, restaurants and shops reap a rich harvest that is largely gleaned from Americans. It is no uncommon thing to find a two priced system, one for Americans and one for the natives. The only reasonable thing in Paris is the taxicab, and that is increasing in cost.

A system of extras in French restaurants brings up prices to fat sums. One is lucky to get away under $2.50 for a reasonably simple meal in a first class place. On the trains a dinner of soup, omelet, veal, two vegetables, salad, pudding, cheese and cherries costs $1.20. Coffee and butter are extra. In the first class hotels a room and bath costs about $2. Every service is extra.

In Paris it costs about $4 to have a suit pressed.

Although Constantine of Greece was restored to his throne by a plebiscite, in which the people gave him an overwhelming vote of confidence, France has declined to recognise him, and in this she has been followed by Britain and America. This ommission gives Greece another score to settle with the Allies, and she had many before.

The French are uncompromising in their attitude. B. M. Baruch, Chairman of the Economic Section of the American Peace Mission, which opposed the reparation clauses of the peace treaty, recently wrote an article for World's Work, in which he expressed deep sympathy for France and added that it was inevitable that the reparations must be scaled down. Instantly the article was torn to pieces by the French publicists and the French press. They ignored his firm friendship to their country in their desire to excoriate him for daring to express that which every one of them knows is certain—the reduction of the reparations to be exacted from Germany.

Just before he left Paris a distinguished Frenchman said to me that the great trouble with his country was that it had produced no great men since Thiers. This may be true, but personally I believe that Clemenceau will be written down as great, for surely Clemenceau played the largest part in bringing victory to France.

The French press is most niggardly in its publication of American news, yet writers for French papers are continually complaining of the ignorance in America concerning France. The truth is that America and Americans know a great deal more of France, Britain and Germany than France, Britain and Germany know about America and Americans.

With few exceptions, the French press has little to teach American journalism. The American professional code of ethics is far higher than that which is followed by French journalism.

A story some of the French journalists are telling with much relish concerns a distinguished American newspaper man. As he arrived in Paris he was greeted with an apology for the unseasonable weather, it being unusually cold. "I don't mind the weather," he responded quite seriously, "for I am a cold man."

The French insistence upon form, which gives all their ceremonials a greater if not more adventitious interest than ours possesses, is best illustrated by an incident that occurred on a Sunday at the Longchamps race track. It was raining when an American—Charles Merz—wearing a cap—an expensive English cap, it may be added—presented himself at the gate for admission. Instantly he became the center of a gesticulating group of attendants. He presently discovered that he was barred from admission because of his headgear. He had an inspiration. He put his cap in his pocket and went in bareheaded, amid their bows of acquiescence and welcome.

-:- Pay And Forget, Britain's Task -:-

BY SIR PHILIP GIBBS

A very great American in London, one of the most important men in the world today, startled me last week (Aug. 12) by making the following remark with absolute sincerity and gravity: "The only country in Europe which is getting better is Russia. Others are getting worse." These words took my breath away for a moment because this man has intimate knowledge not only of the economic facts of Europe, but also of the secret forces of international politics.

Is there any truth or absolute truth in what he says? If so, Europe must be in a bad way, indeed, for improvement in Russia is just the difference between hunger and starvation or lingering misery and sudden death. Of course, he did not mean that other European countries are in the same state of poverty as Russia. What he meant was that whereas Russia is just showing signs of renewed vitality, however low her vital spark, some approach to sanity after the wild madness of revolution, other nations, like France, Germany, Austria, Italy and England, are showing signs not of regeneration, but of further decay.

I am bound to say I entirely agree with him. It is becoming clear to many minds in Great Britain and elsewhere that nothing can save Europe from very grave catastrophe, including widespread revolution and new wars during the next ten or fifteen years, except a complete change in international relationship based not on facts of the old statesmen now in power but upon the uprising and spiritual regeneration of the younger generation. Whether that is going to happen or not is still uncertain. There are no immediate signs of it. But if it does not happen quite soon there is going to be a European upheaval which will shake the world to its foundations.

THE DANGER SOURCE

The central fact in this alarming state of affairs is the economic collapse of Germany. If those 60,000,000 highly organised, industrious, virile people find themselves unable to maintain national life in an orderly way because of the downfall of credit and soaring prices the effect of their desperate, violent reaction will shake the very pillars of European civilisation. That is only one aspect of the dangers now threatening us all. Owing to the inability of European statesmen to sink all national differences in a common effort to rise above the slough of despond in which Europe sank after the war, the financial conditions of every country, including Great Britain, are steadily growing worse. Capital is crippled in its enterprise, national revenues are eaten up by national debt and trade between one country and another is made difficult and dangerous owing to the unstable state of exchanges. There is actually dry rot in the human energy of Europe and civilisation as shown by the figures of unemployment in England, disastrous because it is a waste of living material which could be converted into the fruits of toil. Suspicion, anger and ill temper are aroused between one nation and another, each of whom accuses the other with being the chief cause of its burdens, fanning up smoldering fires which one day may leap into flames.

"We do not want any more war," said a German the other day, then added grimly, "except one." There is no need to mention the nation which was to be the exception to that pacifist philosophy. France does not want any more war, being convinced of its irrevocable costs. But she is not going to take chances. She is fully aware of that German exception. So she is training black legions in North Africa, maintaining a great military machine, building strong fleets of submarines, crowding the sky with airplanes. England, very close to the coast of France, is not absolutely certain of French friendship, forever and ever, in spite of common sacrifices; she is nervous of those submarines and aeroplanes and the British Government unwillingly and under immense pressure of public uneasiness, promised to increase her air fleet to 500 planes against the French 2,000. Of course, we cannot afford it. France can afford it still less, because of her enormous debt to England and the German failure to pay. What sense is there in all this? What security for peace? What chance for recuperation from wars and ruin Yet without some miraculous change in human nature and international policy it is inevitable.

BALFOUR'S DEBT NOTE

Balfour's famous note threw a fierce white light on the vicious circle in which Europe is coiled in those strangling coils of international debt. After all the violence, comment and argument which it has engendered what is to emerge is a plain, inescapable fact. It is this: Britain will pay the United States £900,000,000, whatever the burden may mean to her people, but she cannot let France off some proportion at least of that enormous sum of £3,000,000,000 owed Great Britain, of which France owes £584,000,000. So to pay England France must squeeze Germany by thumbscrew and rack, knowing all the time it will only produce an insignificant share in Germany's real indebtedness. So the process of Europe's decay must go on to exasperation and lead to desperation.

In conversations between Poincare and Lloyd George they endeavored to find a way out of this tangle. There is no way out except a complete wash out of interallied debts, including those of the United States, which will not be washed out unless Great Britain were to forgive all debtors and pay all debts. That, in my opinion, is utterly unfair, but also one heroic remedy which can save us all. For the sake of Europe the British people might be induced to suffer greater burdens, even at the risk of sinking under the weight of them. I believe there is a majority in Great Britain who would take that risk for the possible chance of securing world peace recovery. I am inclined to believe we shall do so ultimately, whatever temporary arrangement may be patched up between Poincare and Lloyd George with their half-hearted compromise on each side.

But whether we take the full risk of the burden of Europe or only part of it, as now, it would be well for the world to know that already the British people are more heavily handicapped than any other people. Leaving on one side the American debt, we are taxed up to the eyebrows. For income tax we pay seven pounds ten shillings a head, as against the French one pound a head, and for indirect taxation three pounds ten a head, against the French one pound a head.

WHAT PAYMENT MEANS

In order to pay £50,000,000 yearly as interest on the American loan we shall have to scrape up another shilling on our income tax. What will that mean to the British people? Undoubtedly further restriction of business enterprise, more unemployment, dwindling energy in factories and workshops and still greater difficulty to raise national revenue.

The United States will get a lot of money and they will lose a lot of trade. The Western farmer will see his surplus products rotting on the ground because Europe cannot buy. The Eastern manufacturer will have his warehouses choked with surplus stocks for which no European money will be forthcoming. Industrial Europe will gradually decay, the only people with a sense of security will be those who work the land and raise sufficient for themselves with a margin to spare for their urban neighbors engaged in sweated labor. And those sweated masses on wages dropping behind food prices will not be patient and long suffering forever. They will be sullen and enraged. They will certainly make trouble. They will ultimately, beyond any doubt at all, in this generation or the next, repudiate all those debts which were the heritage of the war, either by refusal to pay or by revolutions and disorders, in which there will be no possibility of paying. That is going to happen whatever statesmen do or fail to do, however far Poincare meets Lloyd George or Lloyd George meets Poincare.

There is only one country which can avert the full measure of that European default and tragedy, that is England. The United States might have done so, but she doesn't care to do so, does not think it fair she should be asked to do so. So it is England upon which the responsibility devolves. And in my humble opinion, based on a knowledge of English history and the character of our people, I believe we shall shoulder the burden bravely, accept our growing poverty with patience, turn a blind eye to the debts of France, Italy, Russia, Austria, Germany and all others and pay the United States if we have to mend our boots and sell our war medals. That will help Europe from sinking, but it won't prevent widespread poverty or quicken the revival of word trade. Nor will it secure peace unless in return for England's financial sacrifice France economises on submarines, airplanes and black legions, and Germany makes no exception, not even one, to a new philosophy of peace.

When Conrad Wrote "Lord Jim"

Conrad himself has a fondness for "Lord Jim," although he will acknowledge no favorites. He wrote the story in 1898 and 1899. Several years earlier he had finally left the sea, his health broken by a fever contracted in the Congo. Divorced from the sea, he had not known what to do with himself, so almost as an afterthought, he sent the manuscript of "Almayer's Folly" to Fisher Unwin. To his intense surprise it was accepted. Thus encouraged, he married, settled down in Kent and wrote another book. From henceforward his life is mainly the history of his books. Teodor Josef Konrad Korzeniowski, the Polish lad who was determined to go to sea, had sowed his wild oats on the Mediterannean, sailing up fetid African rivers or crossing around the islands of the shallow southern seas, had fulfilled his ambition to become the commander of an English ship and at 40 had left the glamour and turmoil of a wild, vigorous youth to live quietly in the creation of his books.

For the next few years he was a novelist of a small following. Then came a landmark in his career. Henley accepted "The Nigger of the Narcissus" for The New Review, and the House of Heinemann published it in a red volume for a shilling. From that moment Conrad's following widened, and with his next book, "Lord Jim," his deputation was firmly established as one of the master novelists of all time.

The episode of the pilgrim ship, a tale that was repeated in all ports of the African coast, had always attracted Conrad. A short story took shape in his mind, but after writing a few pages he became discontented and laid it aside. The story was not taken out of his desk again until William Blackwood suggested that he wanted another story for his magazine. Then Conrad perceived that the pilgrim ship was a good starting point for a free and wondering tale, for it was an event which could conceivably color the whole "sentiment of existence" in a simple and sensitive character. So grew the tale of "Lord Jim," the yound officer of imaginative and romantic courage whose life was spent in attempting to atone for one deed of fatal and unexpected cowardice.

When the rust eaten old steamer with its 800 sleeping pilgrims passed over a derelict on a fair, calm night on the Red Sea and a subdued, hideous panic broke out among the few white officers in the upper deck who expected the bulging bulkheads to give way at any minute, Jim stood aloof and disdainfully watched their attempts to lower a boat. But at the last moment as the boat was pulling away from the doomed hulk he jumped. By some strange feat of chance the ship stayed afloat and was towed into port by a French man-of-war. This was the story as Conrad originally conceived it, but the final work traces the wanderings of Jim dogged everywhere by some evidence, some reminscence of that one act. At last in the jungle country of Patusan he becomes the virtual ruler of a trusting savage people and forgets his one failure in his magnificent success. Here, too, disaster overtakes him his power crumbles in an instant but he grasps the chance of a supreme spiritual atonement through death.

"Lord Jim" is one of the most dramatically realised of all Conrad's characters. In fact, Conrad once actually visualised him. "One sunny morning, in the commonplace surrounding of an Eastern roadstead," he wrote, "I saw his form pass by—appealing significant—under a cloud—perfectly silent. Which is as it should be. It was for me with all the sympathy of which I was capable, to seek fit words for his meaning. He was 'one of us.'"

Astronomical Questions And Answers

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS
Eminent Astronomer and Authority on Subjects of Scientific Interest.

A correspondent in West Orange asks two interesting questions, which are presented, with answers, below:

"In a total eclipse of the sun the moon seems to cover the entire face of the sun, as viewed from the earth. The cone-shaped shadow reaching the earth is much diminished in size, but the point of the cone would pass a considerable distance beyond the earth did not the earth interpose. Suppose the earth were placed beyond this point so the shadow could not reach the earth, would this eclipse be apparent to us, only covering less surface of the sun?"

Yes, and such eclipses not only actually occur, but they are more numerous than the total ones. They are called "annular eclipses," because the uncovered part of the sun looks like a ring of light surrounding the black lunar globe. Annular eclipses are more numerous than total ones for the reason that the average length of the moon's shadow is slightly less than the average distance between the moon and the earth. If both were not variable we should never see any total eclipses of the sun—all would be annular, or only partial. The average length of the moon's shadow when it is between the earth and the sun, is 232,150 miles, while the average distance between the moon and the earth's surface is 234,800 miles.

In the most favorable circumstances the moon may be within about 217,600 miles of the earth's surface at a time when its shadow is 236,000 miles long. In such a case its point would extend 18,400 miles beyond the nearest surface of the earth, and the shadow cone would be about 168 miles in diameter where it touched the earth at right angles. On the other hand, the point of the moon's shadow may fall over 20,000 miles short of the earth's surface. Annular eclipses possess less interest than total ones because, on account of the glare of the ring of sunlight surrounding the moon, the comparatively faint phenomena of the solar corona are invisible. The changing, though characteristic, features of the corona form an index to the physical condition and activity of the sun.

"At the North Pole would a timepiece be of any use? Is the time there any and all time of the twenty-four hours?"

If you stood on the North Pole any time between the 21st of March and the 22d of September (the equinoxes), you would see the sun circling around the sky once every twenty-four hours from left to right, i.e., in the direction which we call from east to west. If your watch had a twenty-four-hour dial, and was geared so that the hour hand made a revolution in twenty-four hours instead of twelve, it would keep step with the sun, and if you fixed it in position horizontally, its hour hand would always point to the sun. This would enable you, by means of the circle of figures on the dial, to tell when the sun had completed a circle around the sky; in other words, when twenty-four hours had elapsed. Of course an ordinary watch would also tell you the progress of the hours. But without the aid of your watch, or some fixed artificial or natural mark on the ground, you would not be able to tell, without elaborate observations and calculations, when the sun had completed a circle, or to measure time at all.

A curious fact is, that if you drew a horizontal line across the pole in any direction whatever, it would be a meridian line, i.e., a north-and-south line. Moreover, both ends of it would point toward the south, though extending in exactly opposite directions. Or, to put it differently, when you stood on the pole, any direction in which you chose or happened to look over the earth's surface would be south.

If on approaching the pole you kept the direction of a certain meridian, say that of 90 degrees, which runs through the center of the United States, then on reaching the pole you could mark that direction on the ground (supposing you had solid, unmovable ground under you), and when the sun was over the mark you would know that it was noon in the middle of the United States.

Starting with such a basis, you could sketch out a large dial around the pole, which would serve to distinguish the meridians of different known places on the earth, and so you would know when you were facing toward those places. If you did not contrive some way of distinguishing the meridians you would be more completely lost as to direction when standing on the north pole in perpetual daylight than in the deepest woods on the darkest night. You would have only one direction to choose, and yet that might carry you to the opposite side of the globe from where you wanted to go!

From the Spring equinox to the Summer solstice, the sun slowly rises higher in the polar sky, and from the solstice to the Autumn equinox, it correspondingly sinks back again. Owing to atmospheric refraction, it comes up above the southern horizon some days before the Spring equinox and sinks below it some days after the Autumn equinox, thus lengthening the polar day considerably beyond six months. From the Autumn equinox around to the Spring equinox, perpetual night prevails at the pole (except as shortened by refraction and very long twilight) and if you were at the pole during its long night, you would have the stars, instead of the sun, circling horizontally round the sky, and the problem of time-keeping and meridian-finding would be interestingly varied.

"Health Better than it has been for Years."

Our portrait is of Mrs. WOODROW, of 56, Robinson Road, Tooting, London, England, whose husband writes:

"My wife has suffered very badly for the past four or five years with Piles, being unable to sleep at night or get any relief during the day. She tried several advertised remedies, none of which did her any good. Some three weeks ago she thought she would try 'Clarke's Blood Mixture,' and before she had taken half a bottle she was better, and by the time she had finished the second bottle she was quite cured. She can now sleep well, eat well, and get about her work, and her general health is better than it has been for years." In a further letter some eight months later Mr. Woodrow writes: "I am pleased to say that since my wife's cure of Piles in September, 1918, there has been no sign of return of the trouble."

CLARKE'S BLOOD MIXTURE, by reason of its remarkable blood purifying properties, can be relied upon to give speedy relief and lasting benefit in cases of Eczema, Bad Legs, Abscesses, Ulcers, Boils, Pimples, Eruptions, Piles, Glandular Swellings, Rheumatism, Sciatica, Gout. Pleasant to take and free from anything injurious. Of all Dealers. Ask for and see you get for Infants and Children.

The Effects of Opiates.

THAT INFANTS are peculiarly susceptible to opium and its various preparations, all of which are narcotic, is well known. Even in the smallest doses, if continued, these opiates cause changes in the functions and growth of the cells, which are likely to become permanent, causing imbecility, mental perversion, a craving for alcohol or narcotics in later life. Nervous diseases, such as intractable nervous dyspepsia and lack of staying power, are a result of dosing with opiates or narcotics to keep children quiet in their infancy. The rule among physicians is that children should never receive opiates in the smallest doses for more than a day at a time, and only then if unavoidable.

The administration of Anodynes, Drops, Cordials, Soothing Syrups and other narcotics to children by any but a physician cannot be too strongly decried, and the druggist should not be a party to it. Children who are ill need the attention of a physician, and it is nothing less than a crime to dose them wilfully with narcotics. Castoria contains no narcotics if it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

Physicians Recommend Castoria.

"Your preparation known as Castoria I have used for years in children's complaints and I have found nothing better."
JOHN J. LEFFA, M. D., Cleveland, Ohio.

"For several years I recommended your 'Castoria' and shall always continue to do so, as it has invariably produced beneficial results."
EDWIN F. PARDEE, M. D., New York City.

"Your Castoria is a meritorious household remedy. It is purely vegetable and acts as a mild cathartic. Above all, it does no harm, which is more than can be said of the great majority of children's remedies."
VICTOR H. COFFMAN, M. D., Omaha, Neb.

"I have prescribed your Castoria in many cases and have always found it an efficient and speedy remedy."
A. F. PEELER M. D., St. Louis, Mo.

"I have used your Castoria in my own household with good results, and have advised several patients to use it for its mild, laxative effect and freedom from harm."
EDWARD PARRISH, M. D., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Your Castoria holds the esteem of the medical profession in a manner held by no other proprietary preparation. It is a sure and reliable medicine for infants and children. In fact it is the universal household remedy for infantile ailments."
J. A. PARKER, M. D., Kansas City, Mo.

"SPEAKING FILM" OF RECENT MAKE SHOWN IN PARIS

Whole Plays Can Be Given Without Between-Acts Delay

THREE-COLOR PICTURES

Art Of The Movie Stage Getting Steadily More Life-Like

Paris, July 19.—An exhibition of "speaking films," of the latest developments of the combination of phonograph and cinematograph produced by Leon Gaumont, was given here recently for newspapermen.

From the very introduction of the cinematograph the possibilities of this had been perceived and many inventors had attempted the task. One of the earliest attempts was to obain successive records of the two machines. After a singer had performed before the camera he repeated his song to the recording phonograph, watching the reproduction of his singing image to guide him for the time. But it was left to be only an imperfect approximation and that success could only be attained by the simultaneous records of sound and image.

Devices for obtaining this correspondence on the recording instruments were relatively easy to devise and in 1910 Leon Gaumont presented to the French Academy of Science a reproduction of a lecture by Prof. Arsonval which as far as it went was a brilliant success. But for its perfection there still remained much to be done in the working out of details.

THE EARLY FILM

Nor is that to be wondered at. Those who remember the introduction of the cinema in the '80s recall with a smile how satisfied they were with the pictures—full of jerks and accompanied by brilliant scientillations of light quite foreign to the scene represented. It took at least two decades before those spots on the sun were banished from the screen.

In order to record the two manifestations satisfactorily it was absolutely necessary to keep to two instruments "in step," as the phonograph must always keep the same pace. Since any change of speed alters the pitch of the sound, a rheostat placed in the circuit common to the two motors secures the equality of speed. In case there be any lag or lead of the recording apparatus a device is introduced recalling the "booster" of an electric power station, a small motor acting by switch speeds it up or retards it till synchronism is re-established.

Moreover, similar regulation is needed for reproduction in the theater. The operator has before him, close by the phonograph, a box called "the conductor of the orchestra." It contains: (1) A push button to start electrically the cinematograph at a given sound (say, in the title of the subject) in case the projection does not start automatically; but in the new apparatus it does; (2) a voltmeter serves to indicate the speed, and to show if any inequality takes place; (3) the switch acting on the rheostat to regulate the speed; (4) the reversing switch to speed or slacken the cinematograph.

GRAMOPHONE RELAYS

Two gramophones are worked alternately to secure continuity of delivery; when the record of one is exhausted the other comes into play. By this means the sound records are made to join up, just as by the cementing of films, end to end, the light records are projected continuously. Thus, it is justly claimed, whole plays can be performed without delay between scene and scene or act and act, whereas on the stage some time must be given for change of scene or of costume, and also for necessary intervals of rest for the actors. Possibly the value of such continuity may be exaggerated, for the inventor would appear to take no account of fatigue among the audience.

One of the minor difficulties is found in the necessity for placing the two recording instruments side by side, in consequence of which the photograph is too far from the speakers for easy reproduction of their voices. It needs to be provided with devices for magnifying the sounds it receives.

This, however, has to be made selective, for what M. Gaumont terms "parasitic" sounds, which must be excluded, would, without express provision, accompany and mark, if not overpower, the voices.

Just fancy what would be the effect of the whirr of the recording cinema-camera during a scene of love or passion. That of the projector is too frequently bad enough. The Gaumont firm has introduced means to obviate this but, naturally enough, veils these means in secrecy.

We are promised that future developments will include three-color reproductions, which will give a truthful illusion of life.

Deemed Champagne Mere Mineral Water

London, July 25.—The Bey of Tunis, who died recently, was a strict observer of the Mohammedan rule against drinking wine, but he made an exception in the matter of champagne, which he chose to regard as a mineral water. In this he showed more discrimination than one of his predecessors whom an English traveller visited in the last decade of the eighteenth century. That Bey entertained his visitor to a light meal and astonished her him by the variety as well as the quantity of his drinks, "beginning with bottled porter, proceeding to consume a whole bottle of rum, and finishing with copious libations of lavender water."

China's Trade To U. S. For July Shows Heavy Gains

An increase in the value of exports from China to the United States is shown in the customs returns for July, the excess being G. $5,300,000 over the previous month. July's figures were the highest recorded so far this year. These statistics were received yesterday by the American Commercial Attache, 3 Canton Road, from the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce at Washington.

While the imports from China were increasing 54.639 percent exports to China from the United States dropped from G.$11,000,000 in June to G.$9,300,000 in July, according to the report, a decrease of G.$1,700,000 or 18.279 percent.

The report also notes that the railroad strike continues, that prices are generally higher, buying is very cautious and money in New York is tighter, which decreased foreign buying in the United States enough to account for the falling off in exports to China. Luxuries, especially automobiles, are somewhat lower.

Complete figures for the first seven months on 1922 follow:

1922	Exports from U.S.A. to China
January	G.$7,600,000
February	7,400,000
March	9,500,000

May	8,700,000
June	11,000,000
July	9,300,000
Total 1922	Gold $62,800,000

1922	Imports from China to U.S.A.
January	G.10,600,000
February	8,300,000
March	8,500,000
April	10,400,000
May	8,000,000
June	9,700,000
July	15,000,000
Total	Gold $70,500,000

TRADE INCREASES

Japan is the one important country of the world with which the 1922 American trade shows an increase. American imports from the whole world in the fiscal year 1922, says the Trade Record of The National City Bank of New York, show a fall of 28 percent in value while from Japan alone, the imports snow an increase of 18 percent. The 1922 exports to the whole world show a reduction of 42 percent in value while those to Japan show an increase of 30 percent. The imports from Japan in the fiscal year 1922 approximate $300,000,000 against $253,000,000 in the fiscal year 1921, and the exports to Japan in 1922 were approximately $245,000,000 against $189,000,000 in the preceding year. This estimate of the 1922 trade with Japan, adds the Trade Record, is based upon official figures of eleven months while those of the trade with the whole world during the full fiscal year are official, according to an analysis made by the Japan Advertiser.

Practically all of the increase in exports to the United States from Japan occurs in raw silk while the increase on the import side includes a large number of manufactured articles. True, raw cotton is the biggest single item in exports to Japan but the number of manufactured articles from the United States is steadily increasing and in a dozen or more of the important manufactures the figures of 1922 show an increase in value when compared with 1921, while in most cases the increase in quantity is much greater than that of mere value.

LUMBER EXPORT INCREASES

Of refined copper the exports to Japan in the eleven months of the fiscal year of 1922 for which details are now available are over eleven million dollars in value against less than a half million in the same months of last year, while the quantity in 1922 is eighty-seven million pounds against less than one million in the preceding year. Of lumber the exports to Japan in the eleven months of 1922 are valued at eight and one-half million dollars against one and one-half-million in the preceding year and the quantity 376,000 M feet against 35,000 M a year earlier. Steel sheets aggregate in value in 1922 approximately eighteen million dollars against about five million dollars last year, while the quantity in the eleven months of 1922 is 557,000,000 pounds against 72,000,000 in the same months of the preceding year. Zinc in the eleven months of 1922 is twelve million pounds against less than a half million last year. Other articles which show increases in value in 1922 as compared with the preceding year are sole leather, kid upper leather, gas and fuel oil, gasoline, paraffine, rosin, wire, raisins and curiously, rice, grown in the United States, for the first time appears in the official list of articles exported to Japan, one of the great rice-growing countries of the world.

Raw silk and raw cotton are, of course, the biggest item in the trade between the two countries. Silk from Japan to America in 11 months of the fiscal year of 1922 were 34,000,000 pounds valued at $218,000,000 against only 18,000,000 pounds, valued at $115,000,000 in the same months of last year. Raw cotton to Japan in the eleven months of 1922 were 848,000 bales valued at $73,000,000 against 447,000 bales valued at $40,000,000 in the same months of last year. In both these articles, raw silk and raw cotton, the prices appear in 1922, to show but a slight change as compared with those of 1921, though in many other articles, the prices of 1922 are far below those of 1921.

OTHER GAINS

Raw silk, silk manufactures, tea, rice, matting and toys are the principal articles which America gets from Japan; while the exports to this country include raw cotton, tobacco, copper, lumber, leather, manufactures of iron and steel, mineral oil in its various forms, shoes, paper, tin plates, electrical apparatus, automobiles, musical instruments, sewing machines, typewriters, motion picture films and many other manufactured articles, indicating that America is paying in manufactures for a large proportion of the raw material which are sent from Japan.

The value of American total trade with Japan in the fiscal year 1922 is approximately $550,000,000 against $150,000,000 in 1913. Merchandise from the United States formed 35 percent of the total imports of Japan in 1921 against only 17 percent in 1913 and merchandise sent to the United States formed 39 percent of Japan's exports in 1921 against 29 percent in 1913.

SINO-JAPANESE TRADE

Sino-Japanese trade in August is reported by the Japanese Finance Department as in favor of Japan—for while imports from China fell off Japan's exports from the neighboring republic registered a very good increase. Exportations to Manchuria and Central China proved especially favorable. The favorable balance of trade totaled Y12,579,000.

Total exportations to China during August amounted to Y23,234,000 against Y19,839,000 in the like month last year, an increase by Y3,395,000. This increase is mostly found in the shipments to Manchuria and central provinces of China, as shown below:

Exported from	August 1922	August 1921
Manchuria	Y8,225,000	Y4,950,000
North China	6,281,000	6,243,000
Central China	10,518,000	8,567,000
South China	21,000	76,000

Importations from China amounted to Y20,655,000 against Y12,074,000 in the like month last year, there being a decrase by Y1,419,000. This decrease is found mostly in arrivals from Manchuria and central provinces of China, as shown below:

Imported from	August 1922	August 1921
Manchuria	Y988,000	Y1,146,000
North China	3,717,000	3,278,000
Central China	5,506,000	6,436,000
South China	444,000	214,000

Prominent Britons Reach Advanced Age

Earl Of Balfour, Sir George Higginson And Others Named

London, July 29.—Englishmen are increasing on the average toward the three score years and ten limit of the Bible, according to the Registrar's report, which corresponds to the annual findings of the Washington Bureau of Vital Statistics. Several such grand young men came within the press spotlight last week. Among them was the Earl of Balfour, who has turned the 74th milestone.

But at the Foreign Office, where he is directing affairs of state, substituting for Earl Curzon, who is ill, he daily demonstrates that he is young enough mentally to maintain the reputation of being one of Europe's ablest statesmen. After a day's preoccupation in political affairs he shows the physical ability to give men of far fewer years a difficult time on the tennis court or golf links.

Gen. Sir George Higginson made a bright, fluent speech in the clear tones of a young man a few evenings ago, when the Duke of Connaught, Lord Birkenhead and other distinguished friends gave him a dinner to celebrate his 96th birthday.

Another advanced birthday which has just been celebrated was that of Sir Algernon de Horsey, the oldest British Admiral. At age of 95 he fulfills the duties of Deputy Governor of the Isle of Wight and talks of days gone two years ago when he did his first sea fighting off the Syrian coast.

At the age of 80 the Rev. William Pollock of Cheltenham climbed Cader Idris, a rugged peak in Wales 2,000 feet high doing the round trip in ten hours. His rubber climbing boots were worn through in the act but he attended his birthday dinner the same evening.
